B.C.I. Probe Switches to Brooklyn

B. C. I. Investigators Visit Home of Mrs. Stroncone, Found Dead at Tucker's Corners

Revenge Is Angle

Theory Is Advanced Murder Motivated by Revenge

Investigation was being continued today in the death of Mrs. Yolande Stroncone, 37, of Brooklyn, a vacationist whose mutilated body was found early Wednesday morning lying along the little used highway at Tucker's Corners by Oscar Voght of Highland. The investigation took a different turn today when B.C.I. investigators, under the direction of District Inspector J. B. Lynch of the B.C.I., went to Brooklyn to investigate the matter from that angle.

Sate troopers and Sheriff Anderson and his men with District Attorney N. LeVan Haver continued the investigation during the night and the investigation continued until 6 o'clock this morning when the officers took time out for a much needed rest before again tackling the matter.

Mrs. Stroncone of 176 Avenue U, Brooklyn, had come to Ulster County on Monday afternoon for a vacation. She was driven to Tucker's Corners by a brother who took Mrs. Stroncone's car back to the city later. Her vacation in Ulster county was to have been a rest from her duties as proprietor of an ice cream and pastry shop in Brooklyn. Her plan when she left home was to remain away for three weeks.

On her arrival at Tucker's Corners she engaged board at "The Dees," a boarding house operated by Mrs. M. L. DiGiovanni not far from the spot where the mutilated body was discovered. The spot where the body was found is a lonely wooded section on one of the numerous roads which run through the locality. The road, a narrow dirt road, is but little used during the night and early morning hours and Mr. Voght was probably the first person to travel that road early Wednesday morning. Officers believe that the body was brought to the scene in a car and carefully placed some 5 or 6 feet off the road along the highway. The time was probably near daylight.

When Mr. Voght discovered the body as he was passing on his way to work it lay just off the roadway with the feet pointing toward the road and the arms carefully placed alongside the body. Apparently care had been exercised in placing the body on the ground and a slight trickle of blood was found leading toward the highway indicating that the body had been brought to the scene, probably by car.

'Revenge' Is Theory
The murder gives every indication of being a "revenge" murder. Mrs. Stroncone's throat had been slashed and there were stab wounds in the arm and stomach. The autopsy disclosed approximately a dozen stab wounds and indications were that the wounds had been inflicted by a knife or stiletto with a blade about five inches long. Some of the wounds were smaller stab wounds which possibly could have been inflicted with an ice pick.

Mrs. Stroncone had twice been married and was the mother of three children, nine, eleven and thirteen years of age. Her first husband, according to neighbors in Brooklyn, was Ross Stroncone, who died about five years ago, leaving her the ice cream parlor and pastry shop. Two years ago she re-married and had left her husband and resumed the name of her first husband. It was said in the neighborhood that she was a "good business woman" and that her business was prosperous and that she always wore considerable jewelry and frequently carried considerable money on her person.

The body was found some 200 yards south of the Frank Mirra property which is perhaps a half-mile southwest from the place where she boarded.

One of Mrs. Stroncone's nine brothers, Thomas, came from Brooklyn Wednesday and identified the body and took the remains to Brooklyn.

It was reported that she had boarded in Tucker's Corners about 10 or 11 years ago and this was her first known return trip there.

At "The Dees" where Mrs. Stroncone was boarding it was stated she had talked on the telephone some time prior to starting

Eight Supreme Court Judges Are Present; Douglas Arrives

Biddle and Royall Are to Finish Arguments at Session; Murphy Disqualifies Self as Soldier

Washington, July 30 (AP)—Argument on the claim of seven of the eight Nazis who came by submarine equipped to blast and burn America's war plants that they have the right of trial in civil courts, was resumed at noon today before the Supreme Court.

Eight of the nine justices were present. Justice Douglas, who was absent yesterday because of the long train trip from Oregon, arrived overnight and took his place between Justices Reed and Byrnes. The only member missing was Justice Murphy, who disqualified himself because he is on duty as a lieutenant colonel in the Army.

Attorney General Biddle, wearing a black business suit instead of the white linen he wore yesterday, resumed his argument in opposition to the petition of the prisoners for a writ which would remove the accused from the custody of the Army and place them before the civil courts.

All eight of the prisoners have been on trial before a presidential-appointed panel of seven general.

Biddle was expected to require an hour or more to complete his argument.

He will be followed by Colonel Kenneth Royall of the defense staff, who said he might require another hour.

Just before the session proceeded, was resumed, lawyers got a laugh out of an anonymous telegram sent by a well-wisher to the defense counsel and tipping them to look up the famous Milligan case. This Civil War case is one with which every lawyer participating in the action is most familiar.

At issue is the validity of President Roosevelt's proclamation denying access to the civil courts to certain persons, and by strong implication directed at the eight accused, and his order that they be tried by a military commission.

It is the defendants' contention that they were not saboteurs at all—just refugees fleeing from Germany.

Addressing the court in his precise manner, Biddle asserted that it was significant that the prisoners travelled back to Germany from the United States on money furnished by the German government, and that Herbert Haupt, youngest defendant and the only one who claims American citizenship, travelled on a German passport.

The attorney general asked the court to overrule the Milligan case, even though it decides to throw out the present case on the ground that the prisoners are not entitled to the civil courts.

He termed the Milligan case "bad law." In that case, the Supreme Court issued a writ of habeas corpus for an Indiana citizen who was held for trial before a military commission. President Lincoln defied the court's ruling in the matter.

There was no formal announcement immediately, but participants in the trial acknowledged that the secret military proceeding, in recess since late Monday, would not (Continued on Page Eight)

It was the second successive night attack on Germany, Hamburg and its big submarine-building yards having been the target the preceding night of a mass attack in which perhaps 600 planes participated.

Hamburg also was attacked Sunday night. Duisburg—important manufacturing center at the junction of the Rhine and Ruhr rivers—had been raided on four of the previous six nights.

Only a few German planes, flying singly, were sighted over London during the air alarm in the capital. It was the second time in three nights that enemy planes had been over the city, although no bombs fell Monday night.

The last heavy raid on London was July 27, 1941, when the east end was hard hit. Only a few bombs fell in an outlying park in the June 3 attack this year.

10 Airline Workers Die In Crash of Transport

Fire Burns Several Bodies Beyond Recognition; Fell From 200 Feet

Minneapolis, July 30 (AP)—Ten Northwest Airlines employees were killed when a U. S. Army cargo transport plane crashed shortly before 8 a. m. today on Wold-Chamberlain Field during the take-off.

Fire which broke out when the plane crashed so badly burned several of the bodies that identification was not possible.

The known dead, announced by Northwest Airlines officials: Kenneth S. Olson, 28, Minneapolis, co-pilot; John F. Fisher, 26, Fremont, O., co-pilot;

Leonard O. Larson, Northwest Airlines mechanic; Leo D. Hinselby, Northwest Airlines mechanic;

Wilbur C. Rose, Paul F. Parlin and Winston A. Luchau, all Northwest Airlines groomers.

The plane, a 247 Boeing 10 passenger, was loaded with 270 gallons of gasoline before the takeoff. The ship, formerly owned by United Airlines, belonged to the government and had been acquired by Northwest Airlines to use as a cargo ship on the northern division.

It was operated under the ferry command.

Olson and Fisher had boarded the ship to make a check flight. The Northwest Airlines mechanic and groomers went aboard.

The ship, Northwest Airlines employees who witnessed the crash said, was about 200 feet up when it seemed to nose up, swing over on one side, stall and crash. Fire which broke out was quickly extinguished but several of the bodies were reported burned.

Nazis Press On Into Caucasus

Broken arrows in this map indicate objectives of the Germans' drive into the Caucasus, in which the Nazis have pressed on south of Rostov (1) and forced new bridgeheads across the Don River to the east. Meantime the Russians pressed attacks in the Voronezh and Bryansk (2) sectors and claimed gains around Kalinin (3), as their resistance in the Caucasus was reported stiffening slightly.

Not only, it is claimed, does the town of Esopus have a civilian defense set-up that includes every unit called for in the civilian defense program, but all were represented in the five or six hundred marchers who participated in the parade Wednesday night.

Fire Chief Edward Maines was grand marshal of the parade, which was headed by officials of the town of Esopus and guests, and members of the Ulster County War Council. Three drum corps—the Rifton 4-H Club Drum Corps, the Port Ewen Fire and Drum Corps and the Sons of the American Legion Drum Corps from Kingston—furnished martial music for the marchers.

It was noticeable that about every house along the line of march displayed the American flag.

The program at Ross Park was in charge of County Attorney Roscoe V. Elsworth, chairman of the program committee, who said "this is not a celebration, nor a rally, but a spontaneous demonstration on the part of the people of the town of Esopus of what has been done to attain a 100 per cent cooperation in the program recommended by the Defense Council." He said that every unit recommended had been set up and was ready to answer a call, and that all were represented in the line of march.

The program opened with the invocation by the Rev. Michael Curley of the Church of The Presentation. He was followed by all joining in the pledge of allegiance to the flag, led by the Boy Scouts of Troop 26 of Port Ewen, after which Miss Dorothea Groves sang "The Star Spangled Banner."

Chairman Elsworth made a few brief remarks and then introduced the Hon. Frederic H. Bontecou of Poughkeepsie, former state senator, who gave an excellent address, as he urged his hearers to purchase war bonds as something all could do to back up the boys at the front and keep them supplied with the materials upon which their success depends. Stimson Calls for End of Interference With Preparation of Armed Forces
Washington, July 30 (AP)—Every interference with the rapid and efficient preparation of the armed forces for combat must be halted at once, Secretary Stimson said today in response to appeals for furlough of military personnel during the harvest season.

Exceptions to this policy, he said, in a letter to Senator Nye (R.-N. D.), were being confined to cases of extreme emergency and excessive furloughs or leaves would "prejudice the progressive growth of our military power."

"If it should develop that the American people are confronted with a food emergency which cannot be met by the existing surplus," Stimson added, "the use of military personnel may be considered, but only if all sources of harvest labor have been exhausted and the military personnel is employed as units and not as individuals."

Stimson wrote Nye that his department was being "besieged" with requests for release and furlough of soldiers on various grounds but that American participation in the war had brought a responsibility demanding rigid adherence to the objective of developing, in the shortest possible time, a highly trained military force.

It is our responsibility to win the war, to win it as quickly as possible, and to win it with the least possible sacrifice of American lives," he declared.

"To accomplish this we must have skilled, hardened soldiers who are better prepared and more highly proficient in the science of warfare than our enemies whose preparation for this conflict extends over a period of ten years and longer."

Concluding that Stimson had "missed the point of immediate seriousness" involved in the north-west harvest, Nye asked for a conference with the war secretary.

Clamor for Second Front Grows; Cripps Says Plans Secret

By ROGER D. GREENE

(Associated Press War Editor)

Adolf Hitler's invasion armies, racing toward the Caspian Sea, reported today they had cut the last major rail line to the Caucasus oil fields, while in the north the Russians declared they had beaten off all German attempts to hammer wedges into Soviet lines above Stalingrad.

A Vichy (French) radio broadcast heard in London reported that German troops from the Crimea had crossed the narrow Kerch Strait and landed at dawn today on the Taman peninsula of the Caucasus.

Such a movement would seriously endanger Russian forces stubbornly fighting to hold the German drive south into the Caucasus from Rostov.

Late dispatches indicated that the Germans had found a "soft spot" in the Russian defenses east of Rostov and were exerting their main effort to isolate the Caucasus from Rostov.

Meanwhile, amid widespread agitation for an allied invasion of western Europe, Sir Stafford Cripps again told Parliament in London that plans regarding a second front could not be divulged.

Sir Stafford, Prime Minister Churchill's spokesman in the House of Commons, said the government would not be able to reveal such plans "even in secret session," but in response to a member's question he added: "I can tell him now, we have intentions."

London newspapers mentioned Gen. George C. Marshall, U. S. army chief of staff, as a possible allied generalissimo for a second front.

In the Soviet campaign, the situation appeared to be growing rapidly more acute in the northern Caucasus, where the Russians acknowledged fresh Nazi advances at several points.

Premier Joseph Stalin, in a message to the Russian people, invoked the names of Russia's greatest heroes of the past as an inspiration in the present crisis, recalling such figures as Alexander Nevsky, who beat the ancient Teutons, and Mikhail Kutuzov, whose resistance helped turn Napoleon's Russian invasion into a disaster.

The German high command asserted broadly that the Russian line of retreat to the east had been cut off in the great Don river bend, but gave no details.

Dispatches to Red Star said a gigantic seven-day-old battle was raging in the Don bend above Stalingrad, involving thousands of troops, planes, field guns and tanks.

Red Star said the Germans reached the eastern bank of the river in one sector but were driven back.

Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, said Germany now was throwing her last resources into the great summer offensive.

"The enemy is not so strong as he appears to some scared panic-mongers," Pravda said.

Front-line dispatches said Marshal Semeon Timoshenko was rushing huge reserves of manpower into the struggle, while Nazi prisoners were quoted as saying that the Germans were forced to shift troops from other sectors of the front to bolster the Don river offensive.

A mid-day bulletin from Soviet headquarters indicated that the Germans, hurling waves of 40 to 50 tanks into a series of attacks, had gained some ground in the Kletska sector, 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad, but the communique added:

"All attempts by the Germans to drive wedges into our defenses failed."

Reds Hold Lines
This indicated that the Russians were doggedly holding their lines intact, slowly yielding where necessary, and frustrating the Nazi tactics of encirclement and annihilation.

Soviet troops were credited with destroying 123 tanks and killing 4,000 Germans in a half a dozen engagements within the last 36 hours.

On the far southern front, where Gen. Fedor von Bock's armies are striking toward the Caucasus oil treasures, the Russians conceded fresh German gains in (Continued on Page 16)

Grew Declines To Speak With Japanese Envoys

U. S. Ambassador to Tokyo Declines to Meet Nomura, Kurusu in East Africa

Laurence Marques, Portuguese East Africa, July 24 (Delayed) (AP)—Joseph Clark Grew, homeward bound from his mission as United States ambassador to Japan, firmly declined to speak to either Japanese Ambassador Admiral Kichisaburo Nomura or Special Envoy Saburo Kurusu while the three were in this port, it was disclosed today.

They had one brief, wordless encounter on the dock, while Americans were moving from the Asama Maru, which had brought them from Japan for exchange and repatriation, to the Swedish liner Gripsholm. The Japanese were changing in the other direction. Nomura indicated he wanted to exchange greetings, but Grew merely touched his hat and walked on.

Later, it was understood, Nomura sent word he would like to talk with the American envoy, but again Grew declined to have any contact with the Japanese.

Press Feud Wages About U. S. General

London, July 30 (AP)—The Daily Telegraph, criticizing the tabloid Daily Mirror's stand against naming an American allied generalissimo for a second front in Europe, declared today that selection of a United States general for the job "would be welcomed officially and unofficially in this country."

Referring to General George C. Marshall, chief of staff of the U. S. Army who has been mentioned for the post, a Daily Telegraph columnist said: "The absurdity of objecting to an American commander on the ground that no American is of 'proved ability' in the command of masses of men appears when it is remembered that to take on example, Marshall directed the Meuse-Argonne offensive in 1918 and was then acclaimed as a tactical genius."

Nomura, especially during the latter's brief term as foreign minister in 1939, were said to have been marked by mutual friendliness and confidence. Kurusu also was an acquaintance of many years' standing. During the voyage from Japan Grew had expressed deep disappointment over the fact that war came during his mission in Tokyo.

Proposes State Office of Fuel

Threaten Heavy Toll of Sickness, Death

Albany, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—Creation of a state office of fuel administration was urged by a state legislator today to prevent fuel oil shortages which he said "threaten a heavy toll of sickness and death."

Recommending that the office be established by the State War Council, Senator Thomas C. Desmond said in a statement such action is made imperative by "critical shortages of fuel oil in the east."

The Newburgh Republican asserted the fuel problem, while national in scope, "particularly affects" New York where he estimated the cost of common colds in lost work days totals $50,000,000 a year.

He suggested the proposed O. F. A. be empowered to requisition and coordinate facilities for transportation of fuel oil, allocate oil according to need, prevent hoarding and waste of oil or coal, and promote conversion of oil burners to coal and summer purchasing of the latter.

The office also should, Desmond added, "bring pressure upon the federal administration to expedite construction of pipe lines and to end oil production curbs in Ohio, Illinois and Indiana."

The senator reported conferences with coal and oil distributors which said "indicate conclusively" that New York city and nearly all sections of the state except the Buffalo area face "serious fuel oil shortages due to lack of transportation facilities."

"Many sections are receiving now but half of their normal fuel oil supply," he said. "Twenty-five per cent of oil burners in the state could be converted to coal burners without much difficulty, but so far only a few have thus been converted."

Senator Suggests Diverting Incomes To Buy War Bonds

All Incomes Over $25,000, if So Used, Would Net 6 Billions; Little Favors Boost

Washington, July 30 (AP)—A proposal to channel all individual incomes above $25,000 a year into government bonds for the duration of the war was advanced today by Senator Brown (D-Mich.), a member of the Senate finance committee considering the program to add $6,271,000,000 to the nation's revenue.

Brown told reporters he believed some such compromise may provide a workable way of putting into effect President Roosevelt's suggestion to limit net incomes of all persons to $25,000 a year, after payment of taxes.

A half dozen representatives of C. I. O. unions, led by Nathan E. Cowan, told the committee yesterday that the workers of the nation were looking to Congress to carry out the President's proposal, which was not acted upon by the House when it approved the present program.

Expressing approval of the limitation principle, Brown said he had been studying the possibility of attaining it through the institution of a post-war rebate provision such as the treasury has recommended for corporation excess profits taxes.

Under terms of such an amendment, Brown said, the treasury might take the surplus above $25,000 left to any individual after payment of his taxes in a levy for bonds that would be repayable after the war for capital expenditures or for outlays that would produce peace-time employment.

He said it was obvious, however, that certain adjustments would have to be permitted to allow such individuals to meet their obligations and to continue current operations that provided employment for others.

The committee heard a suggestion yesterday from Roy Little of Providence, R. I., president of the Atlantic Rayon Corporation, that it boost individual income taxes so that he and others like him would have to pay double the $7,000 which he said would be due next year on his 1942 $20,000 net taxable income.

The witness said the $7,000 was "too damn little" tax for him to pay and expressed the opinion that the treasury could get an additional $1,000,000,000 from persons in his income class if rates were doubled.

The United Kingdom plans to collect 40,000 tons of old iron and steel a week.

1942 War Cry

Mud Springs, Idaho—Nez Perce Indians today renew their 40-year-old harvest feast celebration.
Sub-Chief Albert Moore of Lapwai proclaimed:
"We have killed the beef," he added that 30 teepees were ready and there will be war dances. Also—
"Tell my people to bring their own sugar."

Unprepared

Chicago—For four long years George Meister carried a pistol in his pocket to protect his grocery against robbers. But robbers left him alone. The gun was heavy, and he decided to leave it in a back room. A few minutes later three men entered his shop and took $120 away from him. Now he's totting the pistol again.

Oneida Farmer Has High Herd

Girls Are Testing Herds Because of Lack of Men

Ithaca, N. Y.—High herd in New York dairy herd improvement associations for June is owned by Clarence Onsrud of Rome, Oneida county. His 14 registered and grade Holsteins averaged 1,342 pounds of milk and 57.4 pounds of butterfat to the cow. Ten other herds averaged more than 50 pounds of butterfat to the cow.
The monthly report of G. W. Talbot, of the State College of Agriculture, also reveals that 462 cows were removed from herds in 40 associations because of low production or disease. Low production took the largest number, 186, while under troubles came second with 124 removals.
"When we consider that the average yearly production of all cows in New York state is less than 6,000 pounds of milk to the cow, we must realize that most dairymen do not cull out enough of the low producers. All dairymen without any regular records of production must cull by guess work."
His report shows that seven girls are now engaged in testing herds, because of the shortage of men. Thirty-six supervisors have resigned from associations since January 1, and at least 10 vacancies remain to be filled. Most of those who left were needed on their home farms, some are working in factories, and some are in the armed services, Mr. Talbot says.

8,000 Gallons of Water Missing
State College, Pa. (AP)—The mystery of 8,000 gallons of water and where it went is still puzzling civil engineers at the Pennsylvania State College. This miniature flood disappeared suddenly from the cistern tank, 10 feet square and 10 feet high, in the hydraulics laboratory in the basement. Containing 15,000 gallons of water, the tank mysteriously became half-empty one night. There seemed to be no possibility of a leak.

At Camp Upton

EDWARD G. WEST

Edward G. West, widely known civil engineer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson B. West of East Jewett, for 18 years, has now been transferred from Camp Upton, L. I., to the Replacement Training Center, Miami Beach, Fla. He was inducted in Ithaca and after a 14-day furlough was sent to Camp Upton. Private West was an industrious employee for 23 years of the Conservation Department of the State of New York, specializing in surveying assignments including relocation of pre-Revolutionary survey lines, preparation of topographic maps of parks and other areas, and extensive investigations in connection with land titles in their relationship to boundary surveys and such other duties normally within the scope of civil engineering. Private West is in line for a commission but his assignment to duty came through first, however. He has been assured of an officers' training in a few weeks. Farewell and dinner parties have been given in his honor, and a token of friendship was presented to him by the members of his survey crew.

Try Hunting Boar With Bow and Arrow

By WILLARD V. YARBROUGH (Wide World Features)

Nashville, Tenn.—Harking back to the primitive method of hunting, a Tennessee couple has found both fun and tingling excitement in stalking wild mountain boars with the bow and arrow.

Relying solely on their uncanny aim for protection against the charging mountain beasts of East Tennessee, Mr. and Mrs. Ed McNish of suburban Madison always have managed to escape the vicious tusks of the Russian boar.

The McNishes, along with Ed's brother, Tom, have bagged quite a few hogs in the annual Tellico Plains' hunts.

Ed McNish, a lumberman, conceived the archery idea while teaching nature study at a summer camp for boys in North Carolina in 1937. He interested his brother in the sport and then taught his bride-to-be the skill.

Mr. and Mrs. McNish go on the hunt together and guides have remarked that it is difficult to distinguish which is the better archer. They have hunted wild turkeys together in the swamps of Alabama, rough grouse, porcupine, bear and fish in the Hudson Bay area of Canada, and whatever they could find in the hills of Kentucky and the Carolinas. But boar hunting is their first love, and always with the arrow.

Brothers Tom and Ed bagged a 370-pound boar during one hunt—the largest ever killed by bow and arrow in the Tennessee forests. Ed likes to tell of their biggest thrill on a boar hunt. A light snow covered the ground and the guide and hounds led the brothers through underbrush.

The board made a stand at a ridge and when Tom and Ed broke through the underbrush they found the guide hanging precariously six feet off the ground on a small tree, one hound dead from the boar's tusks and the other dogs keeping a respectable distance away.

As the hunters closed in, the boar charged the guide. Both hunters loosed their arrows simultaneously in the Russian boar's shoulders. Angered, the beast recovered himself and charged again, this time at Ed.

"It was either that hog or us," Ed recalled. "We let go again and got him in the head to finish off the biggest boar ever killed in Tennessee."

Mrs. McNish came back the next season to bag the biggest that year, and with bow and arrow, too, while other hunters had to be content with smaller game. She's out of the hunt's avails because there's a two-month-old McNish at home needs more attention than the boars.

Tom McNish has shelved his bow and arrow for the duration and is after bigger game. He's an engineer with the Public Roads Administration in Panama, building roads to beat the Japs.

So the honors will be up to Ed McNish when the fifth annual Tellico hunts open this fall. McNish is the fellow who is credited with organizing the Cumberland Valley Archery Association, and the Tennessee Archery Association.

Give Roosevelt The Time
Miami Beach, Fla. (AP)—Ray H. Cannon, a Texan enrolled in the Army Air Forces Technical Training Command's officer candidate school here, is losing his favorite clock, but, since it's going to his commander-in-chief, he doesn't mind. The clock is an invention of his which shows the time all over the world. Its fame spread to Texas' veteran Senator Tom Connally, who asked if he might present it to President Roosevelt for service in the White House.

Birth Rate Increase

Somewhere in Australia, (AP)—In the wake of a wartime marriage boom in 1940, Australia's birth rate turned upward last year. S. R. Carver, acting statistician, reported that the commonwealth's birth rate increased from 18.02 to 19.22 per thousand. There were 126,347 births in 1940 and 134,525 in 1941. Marriages last year totaled 75,145, compared with the record number of 77,889 in 1940, when a top marriage rate of 11.11 per thousand of population was reached. For the first time in 20 years, Australia's death rate exceeded 10 in a thousand.

against 9.75 in 1940. Australia's population had increased from 7,068,669 in 1940 to 7,137,221 at the end of 1941.

The death rate in 1941 was 10.17, against 9.75 in 1940. Australia's population had increased from 7,068,669 in 1940 to 7,137,221 at the end of 1941.

DRIFTING APART

The closing of Finnish consulates in the United States at the request of the State Department after the hamstringing of American consulates in Finland, would seem to bring the two countries closer to an open break. Only the official representatives of the two nations in the respective capitals are keeping up official communication. Some commentators are calling attention to the fact that this step was taken against Germany and Italy only a few months before we found ourselves at war with the Axis.

Our State Department has asked for the closing of these consulates because the Finnish government has failed to permit regular activities by American consuls in Finland as provided for in the treaty of 1934. The change in Finland is said to have come shortly after the Finns became involved in the war against Russia. For a time not long ago it seemed that the Finns would pull out of the war and leave Hitler to fight it with his other allies, but the recent visit of Hitler to Finland and of Mannerheim to Germany are said to have somewhat discounted this optimistic belief.

The diplomatic moves on the chessboard are not clear to the average American who knows little about international affairs, but he feels that the State Department was within its right in its recent action. However, the action would seem to bring the two countries nearer to a final diplomatic rupture. Whether this would mean war is highly doubtful. The Finns do not want trouble with us and it is questionable just how far such a war could go anyhow.

But it is interesting to recall American feeling at the time Russia invaded Finland back in the winter of 1939-40. Sentiment in this country flamed to a fever heat. Russia was depicted as the big, bad bear and Finland as a brave little knight fighting valiantly to keep its freedom. Finnish relief societies were organized all over the United States.

Now Finland is in war against Russia again but this time as an ally of the unspeakable Nazi while we have joined the United Nations and are an ally of Russia helping her in every way possible. Consequently the closing of the Finnish consulates in this country caused scarcely a ripple. This is understandable as we are now fighting for our own freedom and security. But it does illustrate the truth of George Washington's statement that there is no such thing as permanent friendships and enmities among nations.

TOO MUCH CHEER

Three British newspaper correspondents have been called home from Egypt, to be taken to task for their reports. They erred, it seems, on the side of over-optimism, telling their Egyptian readers what vast reinforcements of men and munitions had reached the British commander in Libya, Gen. Auchinleck. The effect was to give the feeling that everything was going splendidly, and that Egypt made no particular war effort. Although Marshal Rommel has been halted for the time being, no sensible person would say that the war in Egypt was going splendidly. Also, every effort that can be made to resist the Axis in North Africa will be none too much.

These British correspondents yielded to a very natural temptation: to play up items that would please their readers. It is human to like favorable news, with its suggestion that present discomforts will not last long. The headlines of our own newspapers sometimes show this tendency to give undue prominence to the bright side of the news. To do so is not always to do the best service. The British correspondents who were recalled from Egypt probably pleased their readers. They did not help their country.

RATIONED GAS

One of the saddest news pictures observed in the papers lately was a long line of automobiles standing patiently behind a gasoline truck at a filling station in New York. Motorists with tanks almost empty had started following that truck in the hope that it would lead them to a station where there was gas for sale. The line had grown and grown until it ran for several blocks and numbered 70 cars.

It was funny, in a way, and yet somewhat pathetic. It reminded many Americans of similar queues in European cities, not of cars but of women, standing and waiting in the street for hours every day to get their pitiful food rations.

WORKING WAACS

Nine-tenths of the white officer candidates of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps now at Fort Des Moines are college graduates. Two-thirds have taught school or held clerical positions and one-tenth are 40 or older.

More than three-fourths of the Negro candidates are college graduates, one of whom holds an advanced degree.

They all want real work. They look for nothing easy. Nine-tenths of them want to go overseas.

There's nothing silly, lazy or sensation-seeking about these women. They are there to give their best to win the war. They will undoubtedly be a valuable asset to the Army.

SAD BOOKSELLERS

Wars are apt to hit hardest the gentler sides of life. An English bookseller complains that his best assistants of many years experience are continually taken away from him for war needs. What makes it worse is to be told that he can find a perfect substitute in some elderly lady who is fond of books. As a result of this attitude one large bookseller has had, since the outbreak of war, to re-staff his establishment five different times.

The bookseller has added much to the refinement of life. It is to be hoped that the war will not drive him entirely from the scene.

For an outfit caught with the treasurable goods, those Nazi spies are certainly getting a leisurely trial. Hitler would have decided a case like that in five minutes.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

MIGRAINE AND POSSIBLE CAUSES

The best definition (or description) of migraine is: a malady characterized by periodical recurrent attacks of headache (or pain in abdomen or chest) with fear of light, double vision, nausea, vomiting; inability to talk and other symptoms due to nerve disturbance. The pain is often but not always on one side; is of a throbbing or bursting type; returns periodically; and between attacks the patient feels well.

I am quoting Dr. Carl D. Camp, Professor of Neurology, University of Michigan School of Medicine in "Clinical Medicine".

Notwithstanding that migraine is common, the actual cause is unknown, and so there is no known cure.

In searching for likely causes, Dr. Camp points out that there is a tendency toward migraine in many individuals just as there is to eczema, arthritis, asthma and other ailments. In fact, an inherited tendency to migraine has been proven in 75 per cent of cases "and is so generally present that, if attacks begin in mature life, and there is no family history of migraine, the disease is probably not migraine."

"Any cause of nerve tension or excitement may be an exciting factor."

Mental and physical tiredness and being overambitious have been the causes of several cases within my own experience.

Lately allergy has been found to be a cause of migraine but Dr. Camp states that allergy or oversensitiveness to various substances may vary under such conditions as cold, fatigue, hunger, menstruation and certain mental states such as conflicts and anxieties.

One of the headaches sometimes considered to be migraine is hysterical headache in which, however, the pain is in the forehead or back of head, sharp or pressing, and feels as if a nail were being driven into the head.

Because some toxins (poisons) due to liver or intestinal disturbance are often present, a sluggish liver is often thought to be the cause of attacks. It is suggested that these poisons can sometimes be removed by giving a teaspoon of Epsom salts, without water, before breakfast daily for three weeks; then twice a week, and later once a week.

Rest and quiet are absolutely necessary. The patient must go to bed, in a dark room, as soon as the attack begins. Fortunately, an attack can usually be relieved by the use of injections of ergotamine tartrate (Gynergen), or three to six tablets under the tongue. Breathing in pure oxygen also relieves attacks.

Diet in Liver Disturbance

Literary Guide

By JOHN SELBY
"YEAR OF THE WILD BOAR," by Helen Mears.

Two things come to the surface in Helen Mears' "Year of the Wild Boar"; that is, two important things. In a sense, these are the measure of the Japanese crisis, quite as accurate yardsticks as the more ponderous ones of the more historically minded writers.

One matter is the extraordinary repression that has built up material for an explosion through a great many years. The other is the extreme superficiality of Japan's "modernization," and the conflict that arose inevitably in a nation which wanted to use the technique of the modern world, and at the same time wanted with equal force to preserve the Japanese way, because the Japanese way provided the means of control.

Miss Mears lived for some time with an English and a Japanese friend in Tokyo, and traveled extensively. Her book is concerned with the detail of Japan, and it contains a good deal more than the two points mentioned. Indeed, the contrasts and the color are often so fascinating that the reader loses perspective for the moment—a condition that is sometimes abetted by the fact that the author also seems to waver in her own attitude toward what she saw, and what she sensed.

The way in which Japanese life is controlled would be intolerable even to a Nazi. What the government does not prescribe is cared for by "shushan," which is simply custom. Not the smallest thing is left to individual initiative, and Miss Mears indicates, the one really remarkable fact about this is the acceptance of the people. And yet she sensed, or believed she sensed, a terrific interior pressure which would (and did) eventually blow the lid off.

And the conflict brought on by Japan's determination to be "modern" while at the same time she remained unmodern is just as unfortunate. It produced, for one thing, a kind of national inability to deal with realities; the whole country seemed to Miss Mears bent deliberately on working out a set of imaginary problems. Japan believed America was so and so; therefore America could be managed—so and so.

There is a lot of information in "Year of the Wild Boar."

Politicians Are Directing Era of Deception: War Versus Costs, Taxes and Wages

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, July 30 — This might well be called the era of deception. Not only are the politicians misleading the people as to how the cost of the war can be paid for by a small class of citizens but they are also proposing a wage-cut of tremendous size for a vast number of citizens.

Thus, while weekly earnings in manufacturing industries have been repeatedly increased and now, under the new formula of wage "stabilization," are to be increased still more to make up for a rise in the cost of living, the people who have saved their money are undergoing a considerable slash in their income from savings. Nobody has as yet proposed relief or income stabilization for the millions of persons who are suffering a loss of interest income on savings or who have been undergoing such a steady decline by reason of New Deal policies before and after world war II began.

Treasury bonds which used to yield the investor 3.6 per cent in 1929 and as high as 3.65 in 1932 have been forced down by governmental policy so that the yield is down to 1.97 per cent.

During that same period average weekly earnings in manufacturing industries have more than doubled, going from $17.86 in 1932 to $37.40 in May 1942.

Interest rates on time deposits have come down from 3.1 per cent in 1932 to close to 1 per cent in 1942. This is a wage cut for investors of 66 2/3 per cent. Certainly if there is any "stabilization" required, here is a place where there is a crying need.

Take first rate bonds of corporations. Whereas the rate was about 5 per cent in 1932, the yield of income in May 1942, had been reduced to the 2.85 per cent level. This, of course, is the direct result of the way the treasury has cut down interest rates and slashed the income of the thrifty who save their money.

Now, in the face of the foregoing trends, which show that persons who have savings suffered a severe cut in wages in the last decade, it is proposed by the labor politicians that another kind of a cut be imposed on those who have saved money and invested it in corporations—a cut by means of heavy taxation that will make it difficult for some companies to meet interest payments on bonds and impossible for other companies to pay dividends on stocks in which the thrifty may have invested their money hoping for a steady income.

There are hundreds of thousands of persons who have invested their money in the large corporations, many of which are now announcing a cut in dividends. War taxation is a necessity and persons who are having their dividends cut are fully aware of the necessities which require such a course. But they look askance at the other groups of citizens which, in the face of a big wage cut for one group, are actually insisting on a wage increase for their own groups. There hardly seems to be a uniform sacrifice in that kind of public policy.

There are literally millions of persons who own insurance policies. They have been told that their premiums would run about a certain figure each year. They now face the fact that insurance companies cannot possibly yield their funds and get a normal yield. This may mean a rise in the cost of insurance premiums and, on top of that, the treasury refuses to permit the citizen any deduction from income taxes on account of insurance premium expense to the individual.

Another aspect of the insurance situation forced upon the thrifty citizens of the nation by unsound policies of the New Deal relates to the yield that can be expected when the proceeds of insurance policies are invested by widows and orphans. Many a man who has paid premiums year after year expecting to leave a sum for his family out of which a certain income could be derived must now revise his estimate. The treasury policies have forced a wage cut on the earnings of those who put their savings in life insurance policies.

What's the use of being thrifty anyway? If you save it, you have the wages of your capital cut down by the politicians and the selfish pressure groups who rule the day in Washington. If you try to invest your money in government bonds, you must be prepared for a low income relative to other investments and you wonder what will happen to the bonds and the income some day if something isn't done soon to stop inflation, which could mean a virtual repudiation of public obligations. You wonder, too, what good the yield will be if you will be able to buy for a dollar some day only a half or a third of the quantity of goods you could have bought with the same dollar the day when you earned it in 1942.

The tendency is to force spending now rather than saving. In Britain they have run into trouble with the depreciation of the spirit of saving and in providing incentives. The whole theory of American free enterprise may be impaired in thrift and savings are made less and less attractive for the multitude of citizens, while a minority has its income "stabilized" upward by government fiat.

Rural Ministers Are Attending School

Ithaca, N. Y.—Twenty ministers, and their wives comprising 16 Methodists, two Congregationalists, one Presbyterian and one Baptist, are enrolled in the summer school for town and country ministers at Cornell University.

The purpose of the 11-day school, according to Prof. R. A. Polson of the Rural Sociology Department, is to give rural ministers training in agricultural economics and rural sociology, and to discuss problems of the rural community.

Now in its 18th year the school offers several new courses this summer. They are rural dramatics, by Dr. Mary Eva Duthie; war work in rural communities, by Prof. R. A. Polson; and parsonage-family living for wives of pastors, by Professors Wylie, Cushman, and Monch of the College of Home Economics at Cornell.

Registrants at the 11-day ministers school are Mr. and Mrs. Delbert B. Smith of Slingerlands; Roland S. Fredericks of Cato; Mr. and Mrs. Clifford F. Bound of Greene; Bristol Chatterton of Chazy; Mr. and Mrs. George F. Wells of Treadwell; Grant Selch and Henry I. Fisher of West Windfield; Roland T. Campbell of Hyndsville; Joseph W. Walter of Cobleskill; W. E. Jones of Roscoe; Mr. and Mrs. Harrison De Walt of Owego.

From Pennsylvania are Milton Thomas of Emlemont; Roy Du Vall of Moscow; and Mr. and Mrs. De Loss Smith of Pleasant Mount. From Maine is Stetson Lincoln of Houlton.

Canvass War Area

Washington, July 29 (AP)—The Pacific War Council met with President Roosevelt today and canvassed the whole Pacific war area, including the Japanese invasion of the Aleutian Islands.

Canadian Minister Leighton McCarthy told reporters later that the information received was "of a character which I cannot divulge."

Keep 'em Firing—With Junk!

Washington in Wartime

By Jack Stinnett

Washington—There may be a good deal more to the appointment of Admiral William D. Leahy as President Roosevelt's personal "chief of staff" than meets the eye.

Consider these factors: (1) No President in the history of the nation has ever had a personal chief of staff, yet constitutionally every President is commander-in-chief of the Army and Navy.

(2) Many Naval officers I have talked to consider Admiral Leahy the greatest naval strategist this country has developed.

(3) The talk has been going around that the United Nations might solve the problem of an overall commander-in-chief by designating President Roosevelt.

(4) Close advisers to the President have said frankly, and the President has admitted, that he actually is taking a big part in the strategy of this war so far as the United States is concerned.

(5) The constant talk and mounting pressure for a second front in western Europe make it more imperative than ever that our Army and Navy leadership be correlated under a single command.

(6) The President has been pretty vague about just what Admiral Leahy's duties are to be, but made it pretty clear, by inference, that the Admiral would do the leg work in gathering the facts and figures which will determine the President's decisions as to our strategic moves.

Give those six points a second thought and the conclusions must be that there is something more in the wine than the mere designation of a Presidential leg man. The Army and Navy have chiefs of staff, but when the commander-in-chief of both forces appoints one of his own and when that man has the well-earned reputation and respect that Admiral Leahy has, you can be sure that he is something more than just another "liaison officer."

Washington opinion generally is that no matter what the real reason, the President could have done no better than to pick Leahy, leathery-faced, 67-year-old Admiral Leahy for the job.

An Annapolis man, Admiral Leahy has a record of 46 years in the Navy, a couple more as governor of Puerto Rico and a year as ambassador to Unoccupied France—a post that demanded much more than just a good diplomat and one which,

Navy Chaplains Real Fighting Men

Win Esteem of Men by Understanding Problems

By HERMAN ALLEN

Wide World Features Writer
Norfolk, Va.—"Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition! I got one of the so-and-so's."

That line, shouted by a fighting
Navy chaplain at Pearl Harbor, should go down in American history with Lawrence's "Don't give up the ship" and John Paul Jones'
"I've not yet begun to fight."

Navy chaplains are no meek psalm-singers, but real men—men whom sailors respect. They have their battle station aboard ship with all the rest. Usually it is with the injured, but they are given basic training in the use of weapons and stand to a machine gun in a pinch.

It is not as fighting men, however, that Navy chaplains have really won the esteem and confidence of the men of Uncle Sam's fleet. It is because they understand the problems of homesick boys and of men who walk dully under the cloud of danger.

Here, under some trees on the grounds of the vast Norfolk Naval Operating Base, is a small frame building with a churchlike air—the Chaplains' School.

A guest speaker was talking to the class as I arrived to visit Chaplain C. A. Neyman, head of the school, a Baptist minister who has served the Navy 24 years.
The speaker was a prominent psychologist and theologian from
"up north."

"I hope you can get away from the theology that I was taught," he was saying—"and translate a cold intellectual system into profound flesh and blood experiences."

A serious, spectacled man in his 30's raised his hand.
"Do you think we should use the Scriptures?" he asked.

"Yes, certainly," the speaker replied, "but your use of the Scriptures and of prayer should be determined by what the man needs."

Stranger though he was, this lecturer had hit on the principle to which the Navy educates its budding chaplains—to make religion fit the navy and its men.

"Even a minister of years' experience has to undergo a revamping of thinking before he can be a successful Navy chaplain," Chaplain Neyman told me.

"In civilian life he would be dealing with both men and women of varying levels of society.
In the Navy he is dealing with only one kind of person—fighting men, men whose lives may be hard and perilous and who have learned to evaluate things quickly and realistically."

"They look at religion that way.
Religion has to hit them and their life. Navy chaplains can't use the 'shotgun' type of sermon, the kind that touches every member of a civilian congregation somehow or other. Navy sermons have to be 'rifle' sermons. They have to aim at the bull's-eye."

The Navy sets a high standard for the men it assigns to bring religious counsel to that boy of yours aboard a fighting ship. A man who just "gets a call" to be a Navy chaplain won't make it unless he is an ordained minister with an A.B. or B.S. college degree plus seminary training and two years' experience. On top of this, he must be recommended by officials of his church as a man of the right temperament and abilities.

Sea duty is divided between Roman Catholic and Protestant chaplains, who visit each other's ships whenever possible so that men of both faiths have an opportunity to attend their own services. There are relatively few Jewish men in the Navy—about the same proportion as in the population at large—so there are no Jewish chaplains aboard. There are several, however, at land bases.

Careful selection of candidates and the drafting of a program intelligently aimed at meeting Navy men's needs have raised the chaplain enormously in the eyes of officers and men, Chaplain Neyman said.

"When I went into the service," he recalled, "a chaplain reporting for duty was met with an attitude of 'well, here you are;
what are we going to do with you?' Now it's 'Thank heaven, you're here at last.'"

Pertinent Facts On Conscription

Brigadier General Ames T.
Brown, New York state director of Selective Service, announced today the publication of a bulletin by state headquarters, instructing boards as to the classification of registrants as a result of the adoption of the Servicemen's Dependents Allowance Act of 1942.

The boards have been instructed to classify immediately all registrants of the First, Second and Third Registrations and all men of the Fifth Registration who have reached their twentieth birthday.

While the present policy is being put into operation, all local boards will make every possible effort to insure that the calls made upon them are met on schedule during the period in which the amended dependency policy is being placed in effect. Local boards are authorized to vary from the general order of selection of registrants with dependents when it is necessary to fill the call, provided the registrants who are selected have been classified as available for military service under former regulations.

There is no change in the designation of classification classes and the boards are required to maintain a pool of Class I-A and Class I-A-O registrants available for induction. In order to replenish the pool of such men, registrants shall be reconsidered in the following order: First, potential Class I-A registrants resulting from a change of status and registrants of the Fifth Registration reaching their 20th birthday; second, Class III-A (1); third, Class III-B (1); fourth, Class III-A (2); fifth, Class III-B (2); sixth, Class III-A (3); seventh, Class III-B (3); cases within each subdivision being considered in sequence of order numbers. The subdivisions follow:

Class III-A (1) Single men who do not contribute to the war effort but who have dependents.

Class III-A (2) Married men who are not engaged in the war effort but who maintain a bona fide family relationship with a wife only.

Class III-A (3) Married men who are not engaged in the war effort and who maintain a bona fide family relationship with wife and children or children only.

Class III-B (1) Single men with dependents who contribute to the war effort.

Class III-B (2) Married men who are engaged in the war effort and who maintain a bona fide family relationship with wife and children or children only.

When reclassifying Class III-A or Class III-B registrants they must be considered for possible Class II-A or Class II-B classification. General Brown said, as nothing in the act changes in any way the directions heretofore issued with regard to deferment for occupational reasons. He also said that the boards have been instructed not to reclassify Class
III-A (3) and Class III-B (3) registrants until instructed to do so by headquarters.

Marriage on or since December 8, 1941, or when his selection was imminent, may not be used by a registrant to establish dependency.
A registrant's selection is considered to be imminent at such time in the course of his consideration by the local board that a reasonable man in his circumstances would be placed on notice that in the normal course of events, he would, at an early date, be called upon to perform military service. The circumstances to be considered in the determination of imminence of selection are the state of the national emergency (declared by President Roosevelt on May 27, 1941), the registrant's order number, the registrant's classification, if any, and other such considerations that would appeal to the mind of a reasonable man to assist him in forming a judgment with respect to his future. The fact that a registrant acquired a status, such as by marriage, since September 16, 1940, but before December 8, 1941, is not in itself controlling.
On the other hand, the acquiring of such status when the registrant's call for military service is not far off will be adequate reason for denying deferred classification.

The table of classifications for all classes follows:

Class I-A: Available for general military service when found acceptable to the land or naval forces.

Class I-A-O: Available for noncombatant general military service when found acceptable to

Army Develops New Lamb Suit To Protect Fliers

By JOHN A. MOROSO, 3rd

New York (AP)—The thermometer in humid Brooklyn was clinging to the 86-degree mark when I donned the army's new lambskin flying suit and stepped into a room 39 degrees below zero to test the apparatus.

The locale was the Sperry Gyroscope Company's all-weather laboratory and although the thermometer outside said it was 86 degrees I must have heated up to 120 before I got the streamlined, fleece-lined jacket, pants, boots, gloves and helmet in place.

The laboratory, said Test Engineer Charles S. Southard, was supposed to simulate conditions in a plane flying 30,000 feet high. At this height a pilot is supposed to suffer "deep mental depression" and show "indifference to his mission and even to life itself," the instructions said.

Efficiency is supposed to drop down to 13 per cent of normal and you just aren't supposed to give a darn.

I experienced none of these things. The suit—it fitted my angular frame snugly—kept me as warm as toast except for the tip of my nose and the cheek spaces around my goggles.

I definitely suffered no "mental depression."

The suit was so comfortable that I began to wonder if it really was 39 below and then noted the hair of Engineer Southard. It was all gray.

Southard laughed and explained that the grayish effect was from moisture emanated by our breathing.

In this little ice-box—it is 11 feet square and 10 feet high—I noted all kinds of aerial and naval equipment placed on tables and benches. Southard explained that these gadgets—many of them secrets—were being tested in the stainless-steel, corrosion-proof room.

Oil and grease that go into planes and ships flying in stratosphere areas must be perfect and he was experimenting with some of this stuff.

As to the new flying suit: It weighs only 13 pounds. A new government process of chemically treating the lamb's skin eliminates the necessity of shearing the wool and attaching it to a leather jacket. Now, they just skin the lamb, leaving the wool on it and after treating 13 to 15 lamb skins they can make a complete flying outfit.

In other words fliers are now wearing what the lamb wore before his flesh went into the kitchen.

The Laskinlamb Institute, a non-commercial organization, says the army and navy will require nine million lambs (the institute calls them shearlings) this year. This means that the public will get few, if any, fleece-lined jackets for the duration.

Skeleton of Man Sought For Questioning Is Found

Lowville, N. Y., July 29 (AP)—A pair of red boots and scraps of clothing have led to identification of the skeleton of Edwin E. Dunaway, formerly of Adams, sought by Jefferson county sheriffs and state police since 1928 in connection with the death of a companion.

Coroner L. M. Campbell ruled the identification yesterday, thus closing one phase of the 14-year-old mystery. Physical peculiarities discovered in examinations at Harvard University and the Smithsonian Institute helped establish that the skeleton was that of Dunaway.

He had been sought since the body of Fred Gardner was found buried in an ashpile beside a shack in which both lived in the town of Adams in 1928. Dunaway disappeared shortly after the finding of the body.

The case had been dormant some time when the skeleton was found last fall on a farm in the town of Pinckney, Lewis county, where Dunaway worked at one time.

A mathematical watch recently invented in Switzerland is claimed to be able to perform all sorts of computations based on logarithms.

Keep our boys tiptop by putting the U. S. O. drive over the top.

The more dollars you save in war bonds, the more "Axis Crushers" our army will have.

William—Miss Coy, I am a candidate for your hand.

Miss Coy—Very well. How much of an allowance do you promise to allot me each month? Am I to be the boss of the house or are you? Who is to do the cooking? How many days will I have off each week? What is your attitude towards the members of my family who may want to live with us? In short, what is your platform?

Watcher—Did you get anything? Burjar—No, the guy who lives in that house is a lawyer. Watcher—Did you lose anything?

Sometimes it takes a little humor to drive home a moral point . . . when you are about to abuse a confidant, perhaps this story will recur to you:

Stonewall Jackson kept close counsel of all his strategic moves, never revealing an inkling of his plans to anyone. Once, when the army was making a mysterious night march, a chaplain, filled with curiosity and perusing upon Jackson's reverence for the cloth, rode up and asked where they were going. Jackson looked around as if to make sure no one was listening, and asked earnestly: Stonewall Jackson—My dear sir, can you keep a secret?

Chaplain—Oh, yes, you can trust me, general. I certainly can keep a secret.

Stonewall Jackson (dryly)—Well, so can I.

Full of enthusiasm as a collector for the local hospital, the pretty girl tackled a firm star who was visiting the town. She returned to the office flourishing a check: Pretty Collector—Look what he gave me! It's a check for $10.00.

Secretary (looking at the check) Fine, but there's no signature on it.

Pretty Girl (brightly)—I know, I cut it off for my autograph collection.

It Takes So Little

It takes so little to make him glad, sticks for a kite, a home-made sled.

Or an afternoon spent with his dad tinkering in the harness shed. The friendless kitten, the homeless dog he finds along his way to school.

Gladden his heart, as does the frog that lives beside the pasture pool.

It takes so little of anything, a corky, or a picture-book. Delights him, or a day in spring spent fishing in the brook.

Because a lad holds within his heart contentment enough for his need: And the patience to play a meagre part, he is richly blessed indeed.—B. B. C.

There Is A Difference

A woman smiles as figures mount Upon her private bank account; But with what difference she hails High figures on her weighing scales.

Griffin Is Held Under $5,000 Bail by U. S.

New York, July 29 (AP)—William Griffin, publisher of the New York Enquirer, was held under $5,000 bail today for removal to Washington where he and 27 others face charges of conspiring to impair the morale of the United States armed forces.

U. S. Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter refused the appeal of Griffin's counsel to delay the removal hearing a month because of the defendant's condition and set it for August 11.

Griffin has been in a hospital for treatment of a heart condition, but Assistant U. S. Attorney Howard F. Corcoran said a government doctor had examined Griffin and reported his condition would not prevent his removal.

After Griffin refused to waive removal proceedings, Cotter set the August 11 hearing at which time Col. Eugene Nelson Sanctuary, retired army reserve officer and co-defendant, also is scheduled to be heard.

Griffin posted the $5,000 bond and announced he would return to the hospital for the two weeks.

Upstate Trailer Camps Source of Health Problems

Increase of trailer camps in upper New York state is a current major health problem, Mrs. Mary O'Neil, public health nurse said yesterday in submitting a brief report of the recent public health conference.

Motion pictures shown to the convention of 1,200 health officers she said, showed hundreds of trailers from all parts of the nation crowded into various small areas in the upstate region.

She explained that the laundry problem was solved by the combining of at least two trailers in each camp to be used exclusively for laundry work. Various other health problems have been brought to the attention of health authorities, she indicated, as a result of living in or near industrial regions where defense work is in progress.

Major J. E. Allison Shoots Down Two Japanese Bombers

Chungking, July 30 (P)—Major John E. Allison, who flew Harry Hopkins to Moscow last year, scored one of the most spectacular individual performances by the U. S. air force in China today by shooting down two of three Japanese bombers destroyed out of a nine-plane enemy squadron raiding Hengyang, Hunan province.

The blond, part-bald squadron leader who comes from Gainesville, Fla., shared honors with Capt. Albert J. Baumer, who accounted for the third enemy raider.

Without losses to themselves, the challenging American fighter pilots broke up the Japanese formation before it reached its target, the Hengyang airfield. What bombs the raiders succeeded in dropping caused only slight damage, Lieut. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced.

Allison, who was among U. S. air force pilots who took over from the Flying Tigers of the A.V.G. at the beginning of the month, turned in his feat a year to the day after flying Hopkins to Moscow in a four-motored bomber for conferences with Josef Stalin on U. S. war aid to the Soviet Union.

The hot reception given the Japanese today was in sharp contrast to their previous wanton and unchallenged bombings of Hengyang, important communications center at the junction of the Hunan-Kwangsi and Canton-Hankow railways.

Heretofore the enemy raiders bombed the city at will from bases so close that alarms could not be sounded in time for the population to take cover. They came over so regularly in daylight that the people took to the countryside by day, returning at dark when normal life was resumed in the city.

The same situation prevailed in other cities of Free China but now with the United States air force in action, Chinese say there will be a different story.

In their last reported raid, American airmen attacked the Yangtze river port of Kiukiang, in Kiangsi, on July 20, sinking two small vessels and hitting the railroad station, docks and warehouses.

District Attorney, Rabbi Will Be Speakers

District Attorney N. LeVan Haver will be the speaker following the parade and dedication of a service flag at Accord on Sunday afternoon and there also will be an address by Rabbi Herbert I. Bloom of Temple Emanuel, Kingston.

A large service flag, which was made by the Red Cross Sewers, a group of Whitfield women and which will bear some 70 stars representing town of Rochester boys who are in the service, will be placed in position on the post office building in Accord.

Plans for the parade and dedication ceremony have been completed, Supervisor Stanley F. Kelder said yesterday. The parade will start at the bridge over the Rondout at Accord at 2:30 p. m., with the Clayton Band of Ellenville leading the line of march. They will be followed by a color guard from George D. After the addresses by District Attorney Haver and Rabbi Bloom, the Methodist Church will give the closing prayer.

Supervisor Kelder will preside during the services of the afternoon and the band will play a number of patriotic selections.

Says Transfer to India Could Be Without Chaos

New Delhi, India, July 27 (Delayed) (P)—A transfer of government in India from Britain to the Indians could be carried out without "chaos" because the British would be expected to stay on until a provisional government could be formed, Abdul Kalan Azad, president of the All-India Congress party, said today.

"The British administration would stay until such a government could be assembled, free of interference," the gray-haired party leader told a press conference. He asserted moreover that the Congress would not insist that power be given to it but would be willing, if the British chose, to have the government transferred to the rival Moslem League.

"What we are concerned with," he emphasized, "is what is being given, not to whom it is given."

His statement followed publication here of an appeal to the United States by Sir Stafford Cripps, whose independence mission to India failed, to back Britain up in "whatever is necessary."

The Cripps speech shared front page attention with Mohandas K. Gandhi's disavowal of any disposition to allow the Japanese to move into India.

Despite Gandhi's apparently rigid determination to get independence for India now instead of waiting until after the war as Britain proposed, Both Azad and Pandit, have intimated that the door still is open for negotiations.

It was generally assumed that the British would keep hands off the coming Congress committee session at Bombay at which approval is expected to be given Gandhi's proposal for a repudiation of civil disobedience to British rule.

Financial and Commercial

New York, July 30 (AP)—Stocks did a bit better on a selective basis today although many market leaders still displayed a distinct lack of recovery power.

Wall Street was unable to shake off the chill of sharply falling corporate profits and the resultant threat to dividends but the thought arose that current quotations of numerous issues indicated considerable discounting had been done. Stiffening of Russian defenses in the Caucasus was helpful to sentiment.

Selling dried up at the start and, with dealings exceptionally slow, mild irregularity ruled near the fourth hour.

U. S. Steel and Bethlehem exhibited resistance, along with Santa Fe, Atlantic Coast Line, American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, U. S. Rubber, General Electric and Kennecott. Occasional laggards included Chrysler, Goodrich, Anaconda, Eastman Kodak, Woolworth, American Can and J. C. Penney.

Rail and utility bonds steadied. Commodities were mixed.

Quotations by Morgan Davis & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, 60 Beaver street, New York city, branch office, 48 Main street, R. B. Osterhout, manager.

Reclassifying of Married Men Not To Slow Up Board

Extra work of reclassifying married men under the new government regulation is not expected to slow up the work of the local draft board it was learned today.

It was stated today at the local draft board office that the board expects to proceed as usual meeting its quotas despite the reclassification procedure required by the new regulation. Draft boards in other cities, have reported that this extra work might tend to slow up their other regular work.

Under terms of the new regulation all married men in bona fide family relationships will be placed in class 3-A temporarily. This means that the draft boards must change some of the classifications of men in this category.

A married man who has a wife working and who is now in class 1-A will be put into class 3-A. There will be no guarantee, however, against certain members of the State Department as an Italian agent, was denied clemency today, and sentenced to serve six years in prison.

Civil Rights Hearing Resumes

Defense and prosecution counsel centered their efforts during the morning on preparation for the final hour of arguing the validity of President Roosevelt's proclamation denying civil courts to the eight men and his decree that they be tried by a panel of seven generals.

Before the high court's convening time, the defense prepared papers for filing in the Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to cover a technicality raised by Justice Frankfurter at the start of the arguments yesterday.

Colonel Kenneth Royall of the defense staff explained that this was a mere technicality to fill the gap between the District Court, where the defense was denied the right to be heard on Tuesday, and the Supreme Court.

The prime question before the court—raised by petitions for habeas corpus to deliver the prisoners from a military commission before which President Roosevelt placed them—was whether men such as these were entitled to the protection of civil courts as a matter of right.

War Wipes Out Rights. Certainly not, contended Attorney General Biddle in precise, incisive accents emphasized with the flat of his hand. War "wipes out the rights of the alien," he asserted, and any "relief he may be entitled to in a court depends on the grace of the sovereign."

But, the men do have rights, argued Col. Kenneth C. Royall in a resonant southern drawl. The tall colonel, one of several army officers assigned to the defense, insisted that even if the prisoners be soldiers of the Reich they frequently interspersed the six hours of argument heard yesterday by the court. He said that the soldiers, he explained, would have other rights as prisoners of war—rights these defendants cannot claim.

The question from the bench made it clear that the seven justices sought to explore every possible claim the prisoners might have to rights both military and civil. Justice Douglas did not arrive from Oregon in time for the opening session and Justice Murphy disqualified himself because of his present military status.

Chief Justice Stone, interrupting Biddle's argument, remarked that "we recognize the courts are not open to enemy alien plaintiffs but we also recognize that the courts are open to defendants to defend themselves."

Justice Jackson, deeply tanned from his interrupted vacation, asked several questions as to the application of the Hague conventions respecting the laws of war, to which both the United States and Germany are signatories.

At the same time Jackson wondered audibly, since anyone who saw the men landing "could have shot them and it wouldn't have been murder." At what point did the defense change so that they acquired rights.

"After they had entered the community of ordinary human beings in this country," Royall answered.

The defense staff raised other points besides the issue whether the prisoners could claim civil rights—that the President's order establishing the military commission was invalid and that the commission's conduct of the base was improper, among others.

But the question of the prisoners' rights remained paramount since, if the Supreme Court found they had none, it would not need to pass upon the other questions.

In case the court went on to these other questions, Biddle argued that the Constitution gave the President sweeping powers as the nation's commander-in-chief.

Named Fireman

WILLIAM PARTLAN
William Partlan of 231 Catherine street, who for a number of years was employed as chauffeur for Robert S. Rodie, was named temporary fireman at a meeting of the local Board of Fire Commissioners this week. He replaces Charles Kelly of 184 Hurley avenue who was recently placed in class 1-A by the local draft board.

Nation-Wide Gas
Ration Not Needed

Chief Leon Henderson, now was before President Roosevelt.

He declined to discuss the possibilities of universal gasoline rationing as a rubber conservation measure.

As to the eastern petroleum situation, the coordinator told newsmen that next winter we may have to ration gasoline to our thermostats at 65 degrees or even lower, and to eliminate heat from several rooms of homes."

He referred to about 1,250,000 homes in the east, and other establishments using fuel oil for heating.

He said it might be possible that the present rationing of gasoline along the seaboard would have to be cut deeper when he was asked about a possible further cut to enable larger movements of fuel oil.

He added, however, that "I don't want to alarm people unduly, but I do say there is no prospect for fuel oil in quantities to which the people are accustomed."

Referring to Dean's disclosure of a nation-wide rationing plan, he said "a statement by an uninformed person causes a lot of mischief. I don't agree with his conclusions. I don't take anything out of O.P.A. as authoritative, except from Mr. Henderson."

Members of the household went with the officers to the place where the body was found and it was then that they identified the body.

Tuesday Mrs. Stroncone had telephoned to Brooklyn to make inquiry as to her family there.

To whom Mrs. Stroncone talked on the telephone just prior to her leaving for the ill-fated walk has not been established. This matter is still under investigation and a check is being made of cars to ascertain whether any car was seen in the vicinity prior to the time the body was found.

Hasbrouck Wins
Last Round From
'Rip' Van Winkle

Dr. J. Roswell Hasbrouck of Stone Ridge has won the last round in the famous battle staged between himself and Howard E. "Rip" Van Winkle to determine whether Mr. Van Winkle should pay the amount of a mortgage which Dr. Hasbrouck held as a result of a transaction dating back several years when "Rip" anticipated building a new home.

The Court of Appeals has just handed down a decision, without opinion, affirming the decision of the Appellate Division which some time ago by a four to one decision reversed Justice Bergan before whom the matter was originally tried in December, 1939, without a jury.

Several years ago an agreement was reached between Dr. Hasbrouck and Mr. Van Winkle whereby Van Winkle agreed to erect a house on land adjacent to the Hasbrouck place within 10 years from the date of taking title to the land. At that time a mortgage in the sum of $1,000 was given by Van Winkle, the mortgage to be cancelled provided Van Winkle and his wife erected a house within 10 years on the premises. The house never was built.

Dr. Hasbrouck and the Van Winkles had a slight misunderstanding over a stone wall fence which somehow disappeared. Then Dr. Hasbrouck sought to secure payment on the mortgage and Van Winkle claimed that Hasbrouck had waived his rights under the mortgage. Van Winkle claimed that Dr. Hasbrouck had consented to a waiver of the clause demanding erection of the house and claimed that the agreement was in the nature of a penalty and was at any rate not enforceable.

The case was tried at considerable length before Justice Bergan in 1939 without a jury and Justice Bergan found for the defendant, Van Winkle. Dr. Hasbrouck was not satisfied with this decision and appealed to the Appellate Division that court reversed the lower court in a four to one decision.

The decision of the Appellate Division was consequently not to the liking of Mr. Van Winkle and he appealed from the decision of the Appellate Division to the Court of Appeals and the matter was argued in May. The court has just affirmed the Appellate Division decision of last September and the next step will be the matter of a judgment of foreclosure and sale or some settlement of the mortgage.

By now the original $1,000 mortgage has been considerably added to by the costs which have been piling up during the litigation.

Throughout the trial Judge Andrew J. Cook with Francis T. Murray of counsel appeared for Dr. Hasbrouck and "Rip" Van Winkle was represented by Judge J. M. Fowler and N. Jansen Fowler.

The "mortgage" case as well as its predecessor, the famous "missing stone wall case," attracted considerable attention because of the claim of Van Winkle that he is a direct descendant of the original "Rip" who slept for 20 years in the Catskills. Several articles on the question have appeared in the metropolitan papers during the course of the controversy.

Sewer Break Fixed

City Engineer James V. Norton announced this morning that the break which had caused trouble on the Ferry street excavation earlier this week was repaired this morning. Complaints from business men and residents of the downtown area followed the break after workmen had pumped some of the sewage up on the street. Later the sewage was diverted through another pipeline to the Rondout creek. Workmen continued today, however, pumps water from the excavation.

William P. Glass,
Stenographer in Grand Jury, Dead

WILLIAM P. GLASS

William P. Glass, for 35 years grand jury stenographer, died Wednesday evening at his home, 45 Janet street, after an illness of some duration. Mr. Glass had been in ill health for the past two years and had been compelled to take a rest. However, he recovered sufficiently to resume his duties for a time but early this summer was again required to cease work. He died Wednesday evening about 6:30 o'clock.

Mr. Glass was an expert stenographer and was first appointed as official grand jury stenographer when William D. Cunningham was district attorney. He had continued in that capacity since. His knowledge of grand jury procedure was valued highly by succeeding district attorneys and judges and he was reputed to be one of the outstanding men in his line in the entire state. In addition to acting as grand jury stenographer he frequently served as court stenographer and on many occasions acted as stenographer at special terms of Supreme Court.

Several years ago Mr. Glass was engaged in the automobile and garage business and operated a truck sales agency and garage at 56 Emerson street. This business he disposed of several years ago and the premises was then converted to a grocery store. In addition to operation of the garage he became interested in the Kingston Oil Company at the time of its organization and had acted as secretary until the concern was recently dissolved.

When the Wiltwyck Golf Club was organized he became active in that organization and was a director and served the club as secretary. He was a member of St. Joseph's Church, the Holy Name Society of the church and fraternally he was a member of the Kingston Kiwanis Club.

Because of his long association with grand jury activities, Mr. Glass was well known throughout Ulster county.

Mr. Glass had been a resident of Dannemora, having been born in that village when his father was employed as a guard at Clinton State Prison there. Later, when his father was transferred to the Napanoch Reformatory, which preceded the present Institution for Male Mental Delinquents, Mr. Glass attended the Ellenville schools, later moving to Kingston where he has since resided.

In addition to his wife, who was A. Gertrude Cowdrey, he is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Richard Howland of Hammondport, N. Y., and one grandson. Funeral services will be held from the home Saturday morning at 9 o'clock and at 9:30 from St. Joseph's Church where a Mass of requiem will be offered. Friends may call at the home from 7 to 9 o'clock this evening and from 2 to 5 and 7 to 9 p. m. Friday.

Local Death Record

An anniversary Mass will be said for Gertrude Jones, daughter of Mrs. Gertrude Jones, at St. John's Church, Stony Hollow, Friday morning, July 31, at 10 o'clock.

Franklin M. DeWitt of Napanoch died at his home Tuesday. He was 72 years of age. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Mary DeWitt; a son, Willard F. of Fishkill; five daughters, Mrs. Evelyn Smith of Napanoch; Mrs. Ethel Prenz of Poughkeepsie; Mrs. Matilda Christian and Miss Elva DeWitt, both of Napanoch; also 10 grandchildren and two sisters, Mrs. May Humiston of Port Jervis and Mrs. Hattie Le Clerq of Middletown. Funeral services will be held from the Napanoch Reformed Church Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Burial will be in the Fairview Cemetery. The Rev. Vruink of Catskill will officiate.

Arthur E. Corneau of 18 Len Court died Wednesday evening at the Kingston Hospital after a short illness. Mr. Corneau was for 36 years employed by the New York City Water Supply as bacteriologist and chemist. He was in charge of the Ashokan reservoir from 1917 until his retirement seven years ago. Removing from Brown Station to Kingston about eight years ago, he since made this city his permanent home. He was very well known in this vicinity and highly regarded in his profession. Survivors are his wife and five sisters. The funeral will be held Friday morning at 9 o'clock from the James M. Murphy Funeral Home and at St. Joseph's Church. 9:30 o'clock, where a high Mass of requiem will be offered for the repose of his soul. Interment will be in St. Mary's Cemetery. Funeral will be private.

Wednesday morning at 9:30 o'clock the funeral of John J. Herick was held from the James M. Murphy Funeral Home and at St. Mary's Church, 10 o'clock, where a solemn high Mass of requiem was offered for the repose of his soul by the Very Rev. Monsignor Martin J. Drury, P.R.V.F., and the Rev. Benjamin C. Roth, subdeacon. Seated within the chancel was the Rev. Joseph O'Shea of New York city. The children's choir sang the responses to the Mass. The soloist, Martin Kelly, rendered at the offertory, "Ave Verum," and as the remains were leaving the church, "Ave Maria." Tuesday evening St. Mary's Holy Name Society led by President Francis D. Noonan, Fathers Drew and L. A. Gertrude Cowdrey, assisted Father Roth in the celebration of the Rosary. Later Monsignor Drury visited the funeral home and said the prayers for the dead. The casket bearers were: Cornelius Corkery, Joseph Kiwan, John Mahar, Patrick Flanagan, Joseph Corkery, Charles Dunne, Fred Frick, and the Fr. Schell. The burial was in the family plot in St. Mary's cemetery. Father Drew, assisted by Father O'Shea, gave the final absolution as the remains were laid to rest.

Canal Street Negro Dies on Way to Hospital From Kerhonkson

A man identified as Samuel Perry, colored, whose address was given as 5 Canal street, this city, died before arrival at the Kingston Hospital shortly before noon today as a result of injuries received while at work in the water works tunnel near Shaft 2-A, Kerhonkson, at 10:30 o'clock this morning.

Full information as to the manner in which the Kingston man was fatally injured was not available at the time The Freeman went to press but it was reported unofficially that some cement fell on him while he was at work in the tunnel.

Perry was employed by the Reoff Construction Co. It is believed that death was due to a crushed chest, although Dr. Frank Johnson, who was called out in the emergency, had not determined the injuries. An autopsy will be held, he said, to determine the cause of death.

Safety Group Says Record, if Held, Could Save 10,000

June Was Banner Month, National Council Says; Bemoans Loss of Skilled Workers

Chicago, July 30 (AP)—Ten thousand lives would be saved, the National Safety Council said today, if a record-breaking reduction in traffic deaths throughout the nation in June were maintained for the rest of the year.

The June total of 2,090 fatalities was 32 per cent less than the June, 1941, toll, the greatest decrease for any one month in the council records.

There were 14,800 traffic deaths in the first six months this year, 15 per cent fewer than in the first half year of 1941, and the council slide rule experts figured that if the June drop continued the 1942 total would be only about 30,000, compared with 40,000 in 1941. Thirty thousand would be the lowest since the 1932 total of 29,500.

One tragic phase of the traffic death toll this wartime year, the council said, was that 8,400 of the victims were workers, many of them skilled craftsmen who cannot be replaced and whose loss "definitely slows war production."

Furthermore, 300,000 more workers were injured so severely in traffic accidents the first six months that they were away from the job at least a day, many longer.

"It is apparent that decreased mileage due to curtailment of cars and tires was an important factor in the reduced toll," the council said. Automotive travel was down 20 per cent in May and 7 per cent for the first five months, the June travel figures not being available.

The 17 eastern seaboard states where gasoline rationing is in effect had a traffic death reduction of 35 per cent in June, only 3 per cent more than the national average. By sections the June reductions were: North Atlantic states, 26 per cent; south Atlantic, 44 per cent; north central, 36 per cent; south central, 30 per cent; mountain, 47 per cent; Pacific, 26 per cent.

For the first six months, when the national reduction was 15 per cent, the sections reported these decreases: North Atlantic, 5 per cent; south Atlantic, 23 per cent; north central, 14 per cent; south central, 18 per cent; mountain, 23 per cent; Pacific, 11 per cent.

Thirty-seven states reported reductions in June and 36 had decreases for the first six months. Cities in the several population groups which showed the best records, on the basis of deaths per 100,000 population for the first six months projected over the full year, included:

Over 500,000—Milwaukee, 7.8; New York city, 9.5; Boston, Mass., 10.6.

Largest cities reporting no deaths in six months were Birmingham and Mount Vernon, N. Y., and Amarillo, Tex., in the 50,000-100,000 group; Lynchburg, Va., and Fairburg, Minn., in the 25,000-50,000 group; Northampton, Mass., Lockport, N. Y., and Manitowish, Wis., in the 10,000-25,000 group.

Would Die Like Flies
Washington, July 29 (AP)—Clinton Davidson, Washington representative of a private research organization, told congress today that a 90 per cent excess profits tax would "cause corporations to die like flies in the post-war period." Davidson, appearing before the Senate finance committee for Fiduciary Counsel, Inc., of Jersey City, said his organization was organized to provide for a post-war rebate of part of tax payments by corporations under the pending revenue bill would cause great hardship. He said his organization served 40 "medium sized" corporations.

Tomorrow at dawn, Condit will be led from his cell, blindfolded and shot to death by five riflemen recruited from the country. Utah law puts it up to the convicted man to choose whether he will be hanged or shot. Condit preferred the latter.

Facts About Matanuska

All Is Not Glistening Gold of Peace and Harmony in Alaskan Colony, but It's Playing Big Role

By WILLIAM L. WORDEN

Palmer, Alaska, July 29 (Wide World)—It is seven years now since 199 farm families, most of them from the relief rolls of Wisconsin, Minnesota and North Dakota, were brought by the United States government to new homesteads in this then virtually untouched wilderness of Matanuska Valley.

And this year, despite protests, personalities, dissension and disappointments, Matanuska is producing vegetables, milk and meat for Alaska when the territory needs that produce more than at any time since the gold rush.

The question, "What are the facts about Matanuska?" is one most frequently asked in Alaska and one of the most difficult to answer.

You ask two or three hundred residents "What is the matter with Matanuska?" and you will get almost as many different answers.

You will hear successively: That most Matanuska Valley colonists are loafers and wasters, unfit for farming or anything else. That the colonists never had a chance to get out from under government red tape long enough to grow anything.

That the Matanuska project never will return the government's original investment. That the "Co-Op," which operates the creamery, restaurant and other stores in the colony, is inefficient and the root of the colony's evils.

That the farm purchase contracts are drawn to keep farmers staggering under impossible debt loads and to prevent them from selling their property to their children even if they do clear their debts.

That "the best crop raised in Matanuska Valley is kids."

You will, if you wait long enough, also hear some hardy soul admit he thinks the project is a success, the officials efficient and the farmers industrious.

Somewhere between these views, typical of the dissension which never has quit the valley even in its more than year, lies the approximate truth.

100 Still Are There

Of the original 199 colonists, perhaps 100 still are in the valley, although some no longer have any connection with the farming project.

When the colonists were brought up from the middle west, they signed contracts providing that the government-financed Alaska Rural Rehabilitation Corporation would furnish each family with a 40-acre farm, help to clear it and build houses and barns, and finance the family until the "farm could be put on a producing basis."

The valley they came to was a strange place to most of them—a forested flatland lying in a rough circle of 15 miles diameter, cut by two icy glacial rivers. The colonists were awed by the snowy semi-circle of Chugach and Talkeetna mountains around their new home.

The town of Matanuska actually was no town at all, only a weather-beaten railroad station.

The story of what happened in the succeeding months of 1935 and 1936 has become an Alaskan legend and has been retold outside the territory—with varying colorings.

The indisputable facts are strange enough. Colonists lived in tents while paid workmen built their homes. A commissary was set up and proceeded to give almost unlimited credit for everything from ice cream cones to farm machinery.

Hundreds of milk cans were stored in the open before there was a cow in the valley. Carloads of hay were shipped from the states while there was hay already stored in valley barns, unsalable because of the scarcity of animals.

What the actual cost of those first wild months was to the government cannot be gauged with accuracy because of complicated accounting. But the lowest estimate anyone in the Valley now will offer now is $3,000,000, and other estimates run twice that high.

Whatever the cost, the project was in operation in less than a year and Matanuska peas, potatoes and cabbage appeared on the market in Anchorage, closest city to the new project.

The real story did not break until the Rehabilitation Corporation presented its bills for the first year's orgy of buying, plus the necessary expenses of establishing the farms.

Estimates and Facts
Estimates had been made that each family would owe between $3,500 and $4,500, payable over a 30-year period. When the bills were added, the lowest was just under $4,000, the highest well above $12,000 and the average about half way between.

In the end, after outcries that could be heard in Washington, the government capitulated. Commissary and hospital bills were wiped out, and additional credit was given to the colonists.

However, no longer are the liberal terms or the outright gifts of 1935-36 available to would-be colonists. Today a newcomer must pay rent for a year and prove his intentions and ability before the Rehabilitation Corporation will sell to him on anything like the original terms.

In any event, he must farm the land, belong to the Co-Op—the Matanuska Valley Co-Operating Association—and sell through it and pay regularly on his indebtedness. He cannot hold the land as an investment.

Of the cooperative projects planned for the valley, some have been outstanding successes and some flat failures. The creamery today is the largest single industry, with two plants, and it is prosperous. However, there is, in comparison, a cannery which is unsuccessful because Matanuska canned goods were unable to compete in price with those shipped from the states. Equipment such as an enormous pea trading machine now is a white elephant on the hands of the Co-Op.

The dual control in the valley makes for considerable dissension. The Rehabilitation Corporation, a division of the department of the interior, is operated by a government-appointed manager. This organization holds the loan contracts for the colony farms and mortgages on the farm equipment.

The Co-Op, with a capital loan from the Farm Security Administration, now operates all the community projects, including everything from a machinery depot to a slaughter house. It buys all the farmers' produce for cash, sells to them from its store for cash. After dividing excess money through producers' pools, it has shown a steady operating profit for several years and last year paid off $3,000 of its FSA loan.

Contracts Are Controversial
The contracts under which colonists are buying their farms are currently the most controversial issue in the valley. These contracts provide that a colonist may sell his property to his heirs only if those heirs live on and operate the farm. Otherwise, the corporation has the right to buy out the heirs and resell the property.

Currently, the corporation is accepting applications for farms from new colonists who do not need to be on relief and who are not financially embarrassed. In fact, the corporation urges that they have some funds.

A new colonist ordinarily must rent a corporation farm for a year at $25 to $35 a month. If at the end of that period he has satisfied the corporation directors of his ability and intent, he is allowed to get passage to a 30-year contract, receiving credit for about two-fifths of the first year's rental. He can buy without first renting if he has a substantial down payment.

All this is contingent just now upon the new family being able to get passage to Alaska in the face of wartime restrictions. The corporation does not pay transportation.

Whether the Matanuska project ever will return to the government its original investment, let alone interest, seems very doubtful to a casual investigator. But other factors make the picture less gloomy.

The experiment has opened up for farming a tremendously rich valley, has produced fresh vegetables and milk in quantity for a section of Alaska which never had them in quantity before. It has given homes to a number of indigent families and started some of them toward independence.

Most important of all, it is producing vital foods for wartime consumption in this isolated territory.

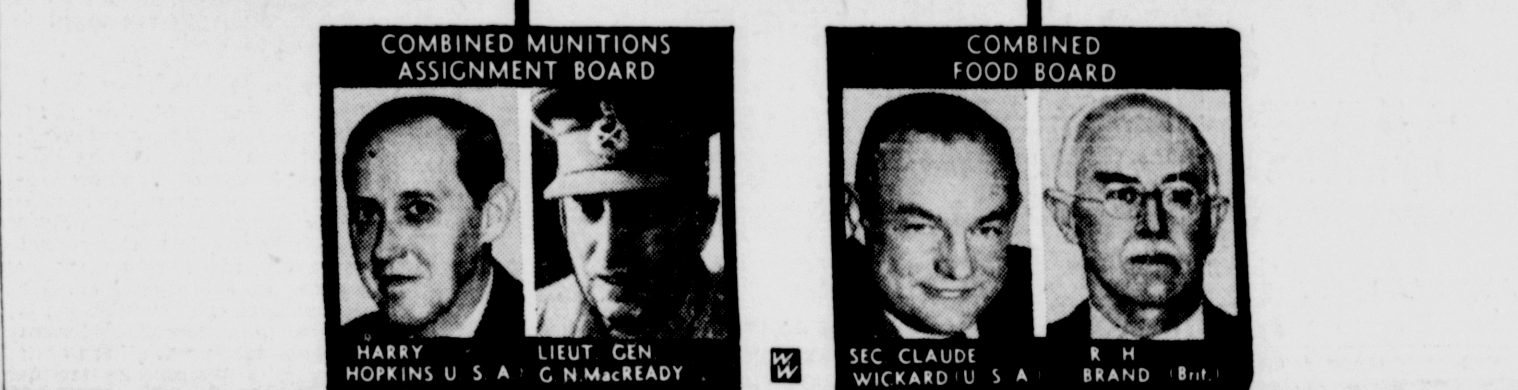

Would Safeguard Rights Of Workers in Service
In its annual report to Congress, the Social Security Board recommended legislation that would prevent workers entering armed forces from losing their federal insurance protection. Attention was also directed to the need of safeguarding the insurance rights of persons who take civil-defense jobs with the federal government and thereby endanger their insurance rights under the federal old-age and survivors insurance system, which does not cover government employment.

Mr. Dublirer, manager of the Social Security Board, said "The Social Security Board suggested to Congress that the insurance rights of those who join the Army and Navy could be protected in one of several ways. One method would freeze their insurance status upon the date of their enlistment or induction, with no contributions or benefits payable during the period of their service but with the resumption of such status at the time they leave the armed forces. Another would extend the coverage of the old-age and survivors insurance system to include employment with the armed forces." "The latter method," said Mr. Dublirer, "would seem to be the more satisfactory, provided that coordination could be effected with the regular armed forces and with the special programs for veterans' benefits."

Decrease Found In Discriminatory Hiring Practices

New York City, July 30—Industrial employment opportunities in New York state for negroes, Jews and persons of foreign births have increased to a marked degree in the seven months since Pearl Harbor, Industrial Commissioner Frieda S. Miller, chairman of the committee on discrimination in employment of the State War Council, reported today.

Declaring that many employers working on war contracts have voluntarily recognized the need for relaxing employment specifications based on race, religion or national origin, Miller revealed an increasing number of employment agencies, trade schools and others who contributed to the deplorable un-American employment situation which existed in this state a year ago are cooperating with as very satisfactory results in recent months.

Miss Miller's analysis of the committee's activities during the past four months shows that 120 employers, with a total of nearly 200,000 employees, have been investigated by her field representatives following receipt of complaints from groups or individuals. In the majority of these cases it was determined that while the specific complaint was unjustified, the policies and practices of the companies appeared to be definitely discriminatory. Provisions of the law were explained and second visits scheduled to check on compliance. While no complete tabulation is available, Miss Miller said that almost all of these plants have commenced to hire persons from groups discriminated against in the past.

Army Explains Allowances For Soldier's Dependents

Group Commanders Will Inform All Military Personnel of Act's Provisions

Unit commanders throughout the army will inform all military personnel of the provisions of the Servicemen's Dependents Allowance Act of 1942, including penalties for fraud and false representations, the War Department announced today.

Payment or acceptance of any part of such funds for services rendered in connection with obtaining them is punishable under the law, it will be pointed out. The Allowance and Allotment Branch, Adjutant General's Office, Building "Y", 20th and B streets, N. E., Washington, D. C., is charged with all administrative work on family allowances authorized by the act.

The act authorizes the payment of monthly family allowances to certain relatives and certain dependents of enlisted men of grade four and below (private, private first class, corporal and sergeant) upon application in writing by the enlisted man, or by or on behalf of the relatives and dependents concerned.

Under the terms of the act, a soldier's wife may receive an allowance of $50 per month where there are no children, $22 if there are children, and $28 being contributed by the government. In the case of a lawful wife, "former wife divorced" means a former wife divorced who has not remarried, and to whom alimony has been decreed and is still payable. The term "child" includes a legitimate child; a child legally adopted; a stepchild; if a member of the enlisted man's household, including a stepchild who continues as a member of the enlisted man's household after death of the mother or termination of the marriage; and an illegitimate child, provided the enlisted man has been judicially ordered to contribute to the child's support, judicially decreed to be the putative father of such child, or has acknowledged under oath in writing that he is the child's father.

The term "parent" is limited to a child to whom the enlisted man had stood in the relationship of a parent (in loco parentis) for a period of not less than one year prior to his enlistment or induction.

If there is no wife but one child, the government's monthly contribution will be $20 in addition to the soldier's deduction of $22. In the case of no wife but two children, the government's contribution will be $30 with $10 per month for each additional child, in addition to the $22 deducted from the soldier's pay. If there is a former wife, divorced, to whom alimony has been decreed and is still payable, the government's contribution will be $20, in addition to the soldier's $22 deduction; however, both contributions will be reduced if the amount of the alimony is less than $42 a month.

Class B Dependents
Payment to Class B dependents is optional with the enlisted man. This group includes a grandchild, parent, brother or sister who is dependent upon the soldier for a substantial portion of his support. In these cases, $22 a month, or $5 if he is already contributing $22 to Class A dependents, will be the soldier's contribution. The government's monthly contribution will be $15 if there is one parent, $25 if there are two parents, and $5 will be contributed by the government for each grandchild, brother and sister.

The total allowance to be paid to Class B beneficiaries, however, will not exceed $50 per month. Where such allowances would otherwise exceed this figure, a proportionate reduction in each will be made.

Allowances to Class B dependents are to be granted only while the prospective beneficiary is dependent upon the enlisted man for a substantial portion of his or her support. Class B payments may be discontinued upon written application of the enlisted man.

While $22 is the amount to be deducted from the enlisted man's pay as his contribution where either a Class A or Class B allowance is made, the deduction will be $27 per month where both Class A and Class B allowances apply. These amounts are prorated to beneficiaries, and added to the government's contributions.

Under the act, the term "wife" means a lawful wife; "former wife divorced" means a former wife divorced who has not remarried, and to whom alimony has been decreed and is still payable. More Than Half Of Big Tax 'Take' Was Shared Gain

Albany, N. Y., July 30 (AP)—New York state collected $480,146,762 from its taxpayers in 1941-42 but 53.4 of that "take" flowed back to localities in shared revenue and appropriations.

Financial aid of its local units for education, highways, health, relief and other purposes cost the state $182,039,410, the annual report of State Comptroller Joseph V. O'Leary showed today. An additional $74,367,259 was turned over directly to municipalities.

Referring to an accumulated surplus of $54,127,419 reported earlier by Governor Lehman, O'Leary said this "sound financial condition" has been achieved "without any sacrifice of the essential services which the state provides for its people."

"The state's financial soundness is reflected in the high marketability of its securities and the low rate of interest on its bonds," he added. "This rate compares favorably with the rates of federal obligations of like character."

The highest single revenue came from motor vehicle and motor fuel levies which, the report showed, yielded $98,768,721 or 24 per cent of the total state collection. Highest expenditure, aside from state aid to localities, was $58,141,866 for operation of 78 state institutions.

The expense—covering 15 penal, 27 mental hygiene and five social welfare institutions, besides 25 colleges and schools and six state hospitals—was $3,280,000 above the preceding year. O'Leary attributed the increase to increased food, fuel, light and power costs.

General departmental costs for administering the state and its facilities—aggregated $41,390,458 or 11 per cent of the total expenditures.

Interest and principal payments on state bonds cost $46,778,650, one-eighth of the total budget. The state's net capital debt on June 30, end of the fiscal year, was $508,311,996, a decline of $21,148,024 from the previous year.

Speaking of Fans
Fans are no invention of the Japanese, so go right on fanning, girls! China was doing it in 3000 B. C. and India can show you flat, painted parchment fans older than Mr. Ghandi looks. In Egypt, "fan bearer to the king" was a big political appointment. Pay was good and you marched in all the processions. We're still making fans in our country, but not the little folding paper kind. They were all imported and are no more. But wouldn't you be happy with a little gold fan, with a real diamond in the tip of each stick, to wear as a jewel on your lapel? Or how about two criss-cross fans in diamonds and rubies? They separate into twin clips, each clip a half-opened fan. In the language of the Victorian ballroom, a half-opened fan meant "Perhaps!"

Flying Column' Fights Fires
London, (AP)—A fire-fighting "flying column," first of its kind in Britain, has been installed at Croydon. Given five minutes' notice, the column can go anywhere to help a raided town, taking its own pumps, food supplies and sleeping outfits. The column is made up of 150 picked men equipped with 20 pumps. Similar units are to be established at other large centers.

Paint stains will usually come off washable material if carefully rubbed with turpentine applied on a soft cloth. If the stains are stubborn, cover them with turpentine, roll up for half an hour or longer and then wash out in the usual way with soapy hot water.

Big Need Seems To Be Diversion Of Nazi Soldiers

Another Question Is How Far Toward Victory Massed Air Raids Will Carry

By DeWITT MACKENZIE (Wide World War Analyst)

The disclosure by British Air Marshal Harris that a great Anglo-American air-fleet is about to scourge the Reich, city by city, signals one of the major developments of the war, but while we can expect much from it we shall do well not to jump to the conclusion that this is a quick solution of all our troubles.

One's first thought naturally is whether this aerial assault is likely to divert enough Nazi strength from the Russian front to help the Reds materially in their present grave position. The answer would seem to be in the negative.

Continual and heavy bombing of German cities probably would force withdrawal of some Nazi air-power from the Muscovite front, and any easement would be all to the good for the Bolsheviks. However, the bombing can scarcely affect the situation vitally in the immediate future, and it's right now that the Reds need help.

Another question that arises is how far such massed bombing might carry us toward victory—a subject which is a burning topic of debate at the moment. There are those who maintain that the war can be won in the air—a theory advanced as far back as 1921 by the late General Giulio Douhet, one time head of Italy's military aviation, who held that victory could be achieved almost overnight by employment of a vast fleet of bombers.

Still, the Douhet theory has yet to be proved, and in any event the forthcoming allied operations won't be on big enough scale at the outset to force an immediate decision. That bombing can play havoc with Hitler's war industries and transportation is a foregone conclusion, and the contribution which this will make towards victory will depend a good deal on the trend of the Russo-German fighting, or at least it so seems to me.

If Hitler breaks through to fresh resources in the Caucasus, and hamstringing the Russian army he will be able to bolster his lagging war industries in Czechoslovakia and other sections which won't be so much affected by the bombing as factories in western Europe. In other words, he will be able to strengthen his air-fleet and anti-aircraft defenses and so better able to meet the allied onslaught.

On the other hand, if the Russians are able to hold the Nazis and keep away from green pastures, German industry will decline with ever-increasing speed. This will mean a deterioration of Hitler's air defense and thus will make the task of the allied air-fleet the easier.

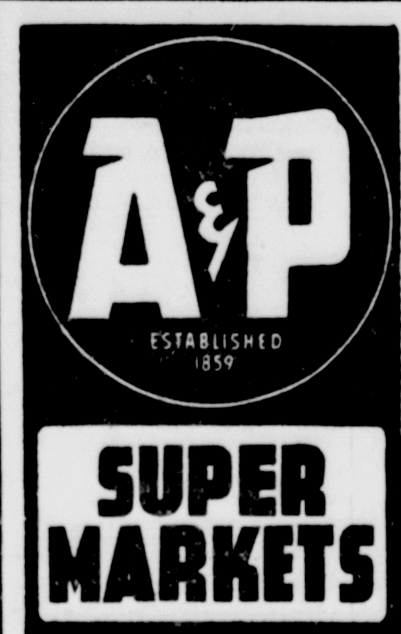

Air Marshal Harris invited the German people to cast off Hitlerism and make peace, thereby avoiding destruction of their cities. Without evidence to support the idea, I don't think we should bank on the Germans quitting solely because of bombing. We've seen Warsaw endure a protracted deluge of bursting steel without the British defying the most terrific bombardment of history.

The Germans are a brave people and it will take a lot to break their morale. It wasn't fear of death by violence that made them surrender in the last war, but a combination of other circumstances: Stark hunger, imposed by the British blockade, lack of a just cause for which to make further sacrifice for their war lord; and the encouragement of President Wilson's Utopian fourteen points.

However, similar circumstances are beginning to pile up on them now. Apart from other things, unless Hitler achieves success in this summer offensive, his people are likely to experience a winter of terrible distress. And certainly the death and destruction and nerve-strain caused by bombing won't give their morale any uplift.

There's one other interesting thought. Any allied invasion of the continent must be preceded by a fierce aerial bombardment of coastal defenses, air bases, and transport lines. Once the bombing has cleared the way, we may get that second front.

National Safety Council Gives Casualties Figures

Casualties to the U. S. armed forces since Pearl Harbor have been 4,801 dead, 3,218 wounded and 36,124 missing—a total of 44,143. These figures are from the government.

Casualties to American workers since Pearl Harbor through accidents have been 30,000 dead and 2,500,000 wounded. These figures are from the National Safety Council.

The council offered the comparison today as evidence that accidents help the Axis in draining America's manpower that is vital to victory.

The total American accident toll since Pearl Harbor has been 60,000 killed and approximately 5,000,000 wounded, the council said. Among the victims are thousands of skilled workers and key men in the nation's war program, who cannot be replaced.

"Casualties on the battlefield are a necessary sacrifice to perpetuate our freedom," said Neil H. Dearborn, executive vice president of the council. "Casualties on the homefront, through accidents, are preventable and hinder the efforts of our fighting men by sabotaging the production of the weapons and material of war."

Those who fall in battle die for a cause. Those struck down by accidents die in vain.

"It is the duty of every patriotic American to conserve manpower for victory. We must stop accidents."

She says that although her ambition is to be a professional ballroom dancer, she intends to stick to her parking job because she figures her service frees a man for war work.

Russia Speeds Harvest
Kuibyshev, Russia, July 29 (AP)—Haste in harvesting the grain of the Volga basin has been ordered to assure victory in Russia's 1942 battle for bread—one of the most important in the war against Germany. The Kuibyshev district committee of the Communist Party has issued an 11-point order critical of the slow start of the harvest.

Weather Is Favorable
Albany, N. Y., July 29 (AP)—While "catchy weather" has delayed farm activities somewhat, crop growth continues favorable throughout the state, the Weather Bureau reported today in a crop condition summary for the week ended yesterday. The condition of home gardens as well as farms continued "excellent," the bureau stated, adding that because of an unusually heavy crop and a labor shortage some hay acreage will not be cut.

Ottawa Glistens At Night Despite War Stringency

Ottawa, Ont., July 29 (Wide World)—War has not yet dimmed the night-time sparkle of Canada's "little Washington," one of the few capital cities of the world which has not seen the lights blacked out from the bomber or dimmed to help defeat the submarine.

Attack by air seems remote in this inland city. No one sees any immediate need of a dimout. So the lights glow and the floodlamps glare when darkness comes—a strange contrast to the somberness of American coastal cities after nightfall.

Up on Parliament Hill, the huge gray stone buildings with their tall spires and towers reaching into the sky are sheathed in the beams of many spotlights. Downtown main streets are bright with lights and multi-colored advertising signs.

Like Washington, Ottawa has a great many more women than men, most of them clerical workers in expanded government agencies or wartime organizations. Many women are in the uniforms of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, and the women's division of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

You can almost pick out the men who have returned from overseas by the way they walk the streets looking at the light... even though Ottawa is not a large city.

The other night a young lieutenant who had just returned from overseas duty with the R. C. A. F. was taking in the sights.

"You know," he said, "you forget how much the lights really mean to you until you return. Now I can't look at them enough. They are beautiful. You feel like you want to reach out and give the light a friendly pat."

Except for the many uniforms, the flags, posters and army vehicles which roll through the city, there is little outward evidence that Ottawa is the nerve center of the Dominion's war machine.

Yet Ottawa is a boom city. The streets are crowded. Taverns keep a river of ale flowing to thirsty customers. Rents are high. Eating places do a rush business. Theatres, all showing American films, are filled.

With all the bustle, however, the city has an atmosphere of reserve that seems to hold a check on the spirits of the endless crowds. You don't see many boisterous demonstrations.

Ottawa has no gay night spots itself due to blue-law restrictions, and so the clubs and dance halls on the Quebec side of the Ottawa river are stormed with hordes. The dance floors are packed like a can of restless sardines with no one able to do much dancing without stepping on somebody's toes or being stepped on.

Russia Speeds Harvest
Kuibyshev, Russia, July 29 (AP)—Haste in harvesting the grain of the Volga basin has been ordered to assure victory in Russia's 1942 battle for bread—one of the most important in the war against Germany. The Kuibyshev district committee of the Communist Party has issued an 11-point order critical of the slow start of the harvest.

Weather Is Favorable
Albany, N. Y., July 29 (AP)—While "catchy weather" has delayed farm activities somewhat, crop growth continues favorable throughout the state, the Weather Bureau reported today in a crop condition summary for the week ended yesterday. The condition of home gardens as well as farms continued "excellent," the bureau stated, adding that because of an unusually heavy crop and a labor shortage some hay acreage will not be cut.

Erik Rhodes, Movie Actor, Enters Army at Fort Dix

Fort Dix, N. J., July 29 — His face gives him the appearance of a foreigner, and when he speaks you feel sure that he comes from Berlin, Rome, Madrid, or some way stop on Hitler's unpleasant time table.

This man has fooled millions of people, for it was his business before he was inducted into the army yesterday. But Erik Rhodes, famed dialectician of screen, stage, and radio, was born in no less a place than El Reno, Okla.

U. S. A. Erik, who completed a run Sunday at Pawling, N. Y., in the stage show, "Ladies in Retirement," is now at the 1229th Reception Center here.

"You can do me a great favor," Rhodes said, "by mentioning that I am not a foreigner. I'm really a short-grass country boy."

"I've only been in the army a short while," he continued, "but already I've found out one thing. Keep your mouth shut, your eyes open, and do what you're told, and no one will have any trouble."

Rhodes speaks several languages fluently, including Spanish, German, and French, when he's not doing dialect.

"I am anxious to put this to some use in the army," he said. "However, whatever way they feel they can utilize my ability is o. k. with me."

Getting up early in the army is no new venture for him. "When I was making movies," he said, "we used to be on the set at 6 o'clock every morning and very often worked until midnight."

"However, I did gain some valuable experience in my stage appearances, and it is good to get away from Hollywood, if only for one reason—the life there is relaxing and you are apt to get in a rut. But I won't have to worry about that for a while. I'll never get in a rut here."

And Erik Rhodes, a man of many characters, walking down a long row of barracks on his way to be taught still another role—a soldier.

Ottawa Glistens At Night Despite War Stringency

Ottawa, Ont., July 29 (Wide World)—War has not yet dimmed the night-time sparkle of Canada's "little Washington," one of the few capital cities of the world which has not seen the lights blacked out from the bomber or dimmed to help defeat the submarine.

Attack by air seems remote in this inland city. No one sees any immediate need of a dimout. So the lights glow and the floodlamps glare when darkness comes—a strange contrast to the somberness of American coastal cities after nightfall.

Up on Parliament Hill, the huge gray stone buildings with their tall spires and towers reaching into the sky are sheathed in the beams of many spotlights. Downtown main streets are bright with lights and multi-colored advertising signs.

Like Washington, Ottawa has a great many more women than men, most of them clerical workers in expanded government agencies or wartime organizations. Many women are in the uniforms of the Canadian Women's Army Corps, and the women's division of the Royal Canadian Air Force.

You can almost pick out the men who have returned from overseas by the way they walk the streets looking at the light... even though Ottawa is not a large city.

The other night a young lieutenant who had just returned from overseas duty with the R. C. A. F. was taking in the sights.

"You know," he said, "you forget how much the lights really mean to you until you return. Now I can't look at them enough. They are beautiful. You feel like you want to reach out and give the light a friendly pat."

Except for the many uniforms, the flags, posters and army vehicles which roll through the city, there is little outward evidence that Ottawa is the nerve center of the Dominion's war machine.

Yet Ottawa is a boom city. The streets are crowded. Taverns keep a river of ale flowing to thirsty customers. Rents are high. Eating places do a rush business. Theatres, all showing American films, are filled.

With all the bustle, however, the city has an atmosphere of reserve that seems to hold a check on the spirits of the endless crowds. You don't see many boisterous demonstrations.

Hoyt to Retire From His Office

Compensation Referee Is Interested in Congress; on Bench 14 Years

Referee Ferdinand A. Hoyt of Beacon, Democratic candidate for Congress and holder of the A. L. P. endorsement, today announced his impending retirement from the state workmen's compensation court bench where he has served for almost 14 years.

Asserting that his current term is the last he expects to hold in Poughkeepsie, Referee Hoyt said that he will retire from his post after primaries on August 11, and devote his time and efforts to a drive to win the seat held by Mr. Fish for the past 22 years.

Confident of Victory
Judge Hoyt is confident that he will defeat Fish in an historic election which is attracting national and international attention.

"Immediately after primaries I expect to devote my entire attention to the campaign," Judge Hoyt said. "Campaign headquarters will be opened in all the cities of the district, and I expect to conduct a vigorous campaign."

The day's developments in the congressional field were enlivened by a statement by Edward J. (Doc) Bowen, candidate for both Republican and Democratic nomination, who took exception to reports that he had failed to appear at a candidates' meeting sponsored by Orange County Young Republicans last week at Cornwall. Mr. Bowen met the reports with a challenge hurled at Congressman Fish to debate him at Clinton Square, not later than August 7.

The Bowen activities, however, produced no spark of interest from Judge Hoyt, who made his announcement on the basis of anticipated victory in the Democratic and A. L. P. primaries, apparently conceding no hope of victory to Doc Bowen.

In challenging Mr. Fish, Mr. Bowen said: "On behalf of the 602 enrolled Republican voters, who have made me their candidate by petition, and hundreds of other enrolled Republicans, who support my candidacy for the Republican nomination for Congress in the coming primaries on August 11, I hereby challenge you to a joint debate on the issue of this congressional nominating campaign. The debate should be held not later than August 7 in this district, preferably in Clinton Square, in an open air meeting."

Judge Hoyt is going about his primary campaign quietly and confidently, anticipating the official support of both Democratic and A.L.P. groups in the August 11 election. His only opposition in the Democratic primary is Doc Bowen while he has none in the A.L.P. primaries.

Under those circumstances, Judge Hoyt's name will appear on the voting machines in spite of anything which happens in the primaries. In the Republican primaries, however, a bitter battle is in progress for the nomination, featuring Mr. Fish, Assemblyman Fite, Augustus W. Bennett of Newburgh and Doc Bowen.

Informal polls and political sentiment anticipate that Mr. Fish will win the G.O.P. nomination, although Mr. Fite and Mr. Bennett are confident that they will make good showings in the voting and may even win the nomination from the traditional G.O.P. standard-bearer.

The Hoyt campaign as it is being formulated by the Democratic A.L.P. candidate, will be a whirlwind drive from Primary Day, August 11, until Election Day in November. Judge Hoyt implied that there will be plenty of action so far as his campaign is concerned.

He viewed with interest the shifts in sentiment in the Poughkeepsie newspapers. None of the newspapers, however, has thrown its support to any of the other candidates in the field—Poughkeepsie New Yorker.

D. L. Condit Is Executed; 5 Men Fire Death Volley

Salt Lake City, July 30 (P)—Donald Lawton Condit, 25, was executed by a firing squad today for the slaying of Harold A. Thorne, Salt Lake City salesman.

Condit, a hitchhiker whom Thorne had given a ride, chose this way to die in preference to hanging, after he was convicted of first degree murder.

Five men from Iron county, where the crime took place, fired the lethal volley. One of the guns carried a blank but none of the executioners knew which held that gun.

The shots were fired at 6:08 a. m. and at 6:11 the prison physician pronounced Condit dead.

Food Is 'Beautiful'
Louisville, Ky. (P)—American food is "beautiful," says 21-year-old Heather Steele, who arrived recently from Surrey, England. Miss Steele came here to marry Noel Merritt, tobacco company auditor, whom she met two years ago while he was serving as an air raid warden in Southampton. She was a member of the Women's Ambulance Defense Corps. Miss Steele's first Atlantic crossing was made in a convoy of ships, one of which was torpedoed by an enemy submarine. She could not decide which was the more memorable experience—falling flat on the deck during the shelling or a five-day round of seasickness.

Dive-Bomber Pilot Tells of Hitting Aircraft Carrier

Washington, July 30 (P)—A dive-bomber pilot tells a story of speeding down on a Japanese aircraft carrier during the battle of Midway and making a hit with one of his bombs.

First Lieutenant Daniel Iverson, Jr., of Columbia, S. C., told of the attack in a report of Midway action made public by the Navy Department.

"At 1,500 feet I selected a carrier target and peeped off through a cloud. Two enemy fighters followed me down in the dive. The carrier I hit was one of three that I saw. It had two Rising Suns on the flight deck, fore and aft. My plane was hit several times by fighters and AA (anti-aircraft). My throat mike cord severed by a bullet and my hydraulic system was shot away. I had to land with one wheel up and my left wing was damaged. The engineering section should be highly commended for excellent work and efficiency in repairing and servicing planes. Cooks and messmen should be praised for their admirable ingenuity and effort in keeping the mess functioning properly 24 hours on end. The ordnance section operating under extreme handicaps performed a heroic job in servicing all planes."

Iverson's statement was included in the "Report of Enemy Action, Midway Island, June 4-5," received at Marine Corps headquarters from Lieutenant Colonel Ira L. Kimes, commander of the Marine Aircraft Group at Midway. Among other combat statements made public today were:

Captain P. R. White, Brooklyn, N. Y., fighter pilot:

"I made a long fast above-side pass on this plane. I saw him waver and make an easy left turn into the water. I believe I shot the pilot."

Second Lieutenant H. Phillips, New Rochelle, N. Y., fighter pilot: "I was on the ground. During the action I saw a marine fighter cut across Eastern Island to help another. He was shot down by a Zero fighter. The pilot baled out and two Zeros strafed him about three times each. Island defenses were well and cleverly manned. There was no confusion and not a person visible in our section of the island, although the AA guns fired at every opportunity."

Federal Court Rules

Out N.L.R.B. in Plants

Dallas, Tex., July 29.—Companies engaged in secret war production may deny access to their plants to union organizers or agents of the national labor relations board under a new federal court ruling.

The national labor relations board, Judge T. Whitfield Davidson ruled yesterday, has the right to examine the affairs of a corporation respecting its treatment of labor, but exercises of that right is subordinate to protection of military secrets.

He granted a declaratory judgment asked by the American Manufacturing Company of Fort Worth which brought court action to determine its rights under military and naval contracts of a secret nature.

The defendants were representatives of the national labor relations board and the International Association of Machinists (A. F. L.).

The court realizes, the opinion said, that it has gone further than any court has gone and it may be necessary for a higher court to pass on this question.

Girls Will Begin Happyland Visit

August Encampment Is to Open Tomorrow

On Friday about 49 girls representing Kingston and practically every township of Ulster county will start their health vacation at Camp Happyland.

Parents have been requested to have the children at the Academy Green on Friday at 2 p. m., where a bus will transport them to the camp. Each year the "kiddies" are the guests of the Ulster County Tuberculosis and Health Association, who sponsor this project as a part of their program from the annual sale of Christmas Seals. Each child is given four weeks of care and training with a program of rest, good food, exercise, work and play, while they are being taught the routines, so essential, especially these days when we know health is our first line of defense.

The Ulster county boys enjoyed these facilities during July and the girls will enjoy them during August.

Sturdy members serving during August will be: Miss Miriam Maroon, resident nurse; Miss Evelyn Olivet of Kingston, and Miss Agnes McManus of Saugerties as counselors; Miss Harriet Meredith of Wallkill, will serve as cook and Miss Catherine Schimmler of Rosendale as helper. Miss Katherine M. Murphy, committee nurse, is the director.

Regulations Revised

For Newspaper Deliveries

Washington, July 30.—Trucks delivering newspapers in metropolitan districts of less than 200,000 population will be permitted under revised regulations of the office of defense transportation to make two daily deliveries instead of one as previously ordered.

The O. D. T. announced yesterday that in such communities trucks will be permitted to make a morning paper delivery and an evening delivery to the same point daily.

Revised orders, effective August 1, also grant a three-months exemption to trucks carrying metal scrap or rubber from the mileage-reduction regulations. Trucks carrying ice will be allowed to make more than one delivery daily to another carrier and may make two deliveries daily to any industrial air conditioning plant or retail dealer.

The exemptions from daily delivery restrictions also were extended to contract and private motor carriers engaged in delivery to vessels and trucks operated in connection with mining, smelting or refining operations under war production board priority orders.

Father Must Explain

Why He Didn't Pay

New York, July 30.—Admittedly contemptuous of New York city for its "disrecognition" of his doings, Father Divine now must show cause why he should not be held in contempt of the state Supreme court.

The squat little negro cult leader known as "God" to his followers recently betook himself to Philadelphia in the hope of receiving better treatment there.

But while he may be getting along okay in the City of Brotherly Love, he neglected to pay up seven instalments of $100 each to a rebellious "angel," as previously ordered by the court, and Justice J. Sidney Bernstein wants to know why, by tomorrow.

The "angel" who turned against him was Verinda Brown, who originally was awarded $5,949 by Supreme court order as repayment of funds she had deposited in the "heavenly treasury."

BUSY GIRL ENJOYS DANCING

AT U. S. O. BUT HAS NO TIME FOR OUTSIDE DATES

The question of how a girl who is very busy can spend just the short amount of time she has off, dancing at the U. S. O. and then tactfully bring friendliness to a close with the orchestra's last number, is the problem of the girl who has written this letter: "Dancing is one of the things that I know I do well, therefore, in my spare time I have been going two or three evenings a week to dances at the U. S. O. But I am now finding the role of cinderella difficult because some of these men whom I have met at the dances resent my discouragement of their attempts to see me between times. It is not that I don't like them, and certainly I don't want to snub them; it is just that I do not wish to become involved.

"My job is strenuous and exacting, and efficiency in it does not permit more than an occasional hour, or two, of dancing that ends whenever I feel like going home; and I think therefore it is the best plan to make no exceptions to my rule against dating any of my partners afterwards."

In further answer to this it seems to me that for the reasons which this young woman gives her plan is both reasonable and wise.

Bridesmaid's Expenses

Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter has been invited to be a bridesmaid at her future sister-in-law's wedding. She lives "far off." Who pays my daughter's traveling expenses, and who pays for her wedding clothes, and her hotel accommodations? We don't know the bride-to-be very well as yet and wonder why she asked my daughter. Maybe she ought to refuse.

Answer: It is customary to ask the bridegroom's sister to be bridesmaid for the obvious reason that it is taken for granted that she is very dear to the bridegroom. Also it is a friendly gesture on the part of the bride to the bridegroom's family. The parents of every bridesmaid always pay for her wedding clothes, and also for her traveling expenses. Her hotel accommodations will of course be paid by the bride's family. More than likely she will stay at the bride's house or in the house of another member of the bride's family.

China Shower

Dear Mrs. Post: A friend of mine recently received an invitation to a shower for a prospective bride. On a filled-in form invitation the following was written: For Miss Jane Doe China shower Pattern 28. Where sold Black & Co.

To me this represented the ultimate in shower rackets. May I have your opinion?

Answer: "Racket" is perhaps too strong a word for what is probably meant to be practical hint to the helpess. But of the impression made, I agree with you—completely as to the "Pay check to the cashiers" impression.

Stocking-Footed Walker

Is Discharged from Court

Ephraim McClelland of Cottage avenue, Nanuet, was arrested at 6:30 o'clock this morning on a disorderly conduct charge. According to the local police the young man, who aspires to be a ball player, was walking on the city streets in his stocking feet. He was discharged following arraignment later this morning before City Judge Matthew V. Cahill.

Young McClelland explained that he had been in the city playing ball last evening and that he brought only baseball shoes with him. His clothes, he said, are on a farm where he had finished his work there, he had not returned to get them. He had taken off the baseball shoes to rest his feet.

Joseph A. Murphy, who gave him address 2227 Bowery, New York, arrested last night for public intoxication, was fined $3.

Question 3 Former Members of Silver Shirts at Trial

Indianapolis, July 30.—Three former members of the Silver Shirts of America were questioned by the government today in its prosecution of William Dudley Pelley, 52-year-old founder of the organization, on charges of criminal sedition.

Meanwhile, Pelley's defense subpoenaed Charles A. Lindbergh, who was active in the America First Movement, and other national figures and requested issuance of a subpoena for Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, together with "any and all statements" showing the "gross worth" of the United States as of December 31, 1941, and January 12, 1942.

Martin Gall, 36, Cleveland meat salesman, and his brother, Michael, 42, a Cleveland meat cutter, were two witnesses who identified themselves as former Silver Shirts.

Martin Gall testified he had acted as a distributor for Pelley publications, including the magazine "The Galilean" and the pamphlet "We Fight for This Republic Only," the two publications on which the government bases its case against Pelley.

He testified there had been no meetings of the Silver Shirts in Cleveland since late 1939 or early 1940, but said the same group had held "several metaphysical meetings" at which Pelley's writings were studied. From five to 50 persons attended these meetings, the witness said.

Judge Robert C. Baltzell interrupted to ask Gall if he believed in all the purposes for which the Silver Shirts were organized. (Pelley's program, as detailed yesterday by the prosecution, called for segregation of Jews in one city in each state, adoption of southern negroes as "wards of the public," use of pre-1929 wage levels as an economic guide, and election of "the Sephardic Jew, Franklin D. Roosevelt," as President.)

"Yes, sir, I do," answered Gall. "Asked what he meant by 'metaphysical meetings,'" the witness said:

"Mr. Pelley taught us that we live on three planes—the mental, physical and spiritual."

Judge Baltzell interrupted again to ask Gall if he believed in the segregation of Jews in one city in each state.

"Yes, isn't the Indian segregated?" was the answer.

On cross-examination by defense counsel, Gall testified he believed there was no interference with the war effort in any of Pelley's writings.

Michael Gall gave testimony similar to his brother's. At one point he said he believed that Pelley's writings "were from the depths of the heart of a man who loves his country." * * * written as by a loving parent who sees a mistake that should be corrected.

A spectator at the trial received a 10-day sentence for contempt of court today after refusing, U. S. Marshal Julius J. Wichser said, to extinguish a cigarette. The man identified himself as Isadore Bornstein, 42, unemployed, by an Indianapolis loan company.

Behrens Held as Parole Violator

Arrived in This Country Aboard Drottningholm

New York, July 30.—The State Parole Board announced today that a 29-year-old former reform school inmate of German parentage had been detained as a parole violator after arriving in this country as a refugee recently aboard the diplomatic exchange liner Drottningholm.

Dr. David Dressler, executive director of the board, identified the man as John Michael Dietrich Behrens who he said had served a term in the Elmira reformatory on a burglary conviction and was permitted to go to Germany in 1939 after expressing a wish to become a German citizen.

The parole board quizzed him as saying he had not become a German citizen.

Behrens said that by "good luck" he obtained passage on the Drottningholm after the German police asked him if he wished to return to the United States, the parole board said, adding that one week after he had expressed a desire to return he was contacted by the Swiss consulate and passes were arranged.

Dr. Dressler said Behrens was permitted to go to Germany under the stipulation that if he returned to this country without permission he would be considered a parole violator.

Behrens is now at Ellis Island and will be sent to Elmira as soon as he recovers from scarlet fever. The parole board's jurisdiction in the case extends to September 1, 1950 and under the law he could be confined until that date, the board said.

Joy and Gloom in Retirement of Sleuths

New York, July 30.—There was joy in the underworld and gloom around police headquarters today as word spread that three of the department's best sleuths were about to retire.

It was hard to determine which of the trio of veteran detectives was the most popular with the force and unpopular with the crooks, as a glance at their records shows:

Edward Wiessner, 50, known as "The Duke" around the missing persons bureau, who probably located more missing husbands and wives than any other man.

Frank J. Teed, 48, of the Wall street squad, who in 1927 shot and killed Walter (Red) Tipping, a gunman who had murdered Patrolman James Masterson during a speakeasy holdup.

Bernard Lester, 46, whose talent for recognizing wanted criminals won him an assignment in the rogues gallery and who founded the system of classifying outlaws according to their methods of operation.

All three applied for retirement yesterday. Wiessner after 29 years of service; Teed and Lester after 25-year careers.

stood in place of a parent (in loco parentis) to the man concerned. Not more than two within the group may be designated to receive an allowance, and in the absence of a designation by the enlisted man, preference will be given to those who actually exercised parental relationship at the time of or most nearly prior to the date of the enlisted man's entrance into active service. If such parent or parents are not dependent or waive an allowance, preference may be extended to others within the class who at a more remote time actually supported the enlisted man prior to entrance into service.

The terms "brother" and "sister" include half brothers and sisters, stepbrothers and stepsisters, and brothers and sisters through adoption.

The terms "child," "grandchild," and "sister," are limited to unmarried persons under 18 years of age, or else incapable of self-support by reason of mental or physical defect.

Whenever necessary, the ordinary Class E or other formal allotments of pay will be discontinued or adjusted so as to insure that the enlisted man's pay will be sufficient to meet his contributions under this act, and permit him to have a minimum credit of $10 per month on pay day for his personal local needs.

An eligible enlisted man who has entered upon active military service since June 1, 1942, will be entitled to the benefits of the act only from the first of the month next following the date of filing of his application with his organization commander.

Allowances may be paid or continued to be paid to the authorized beneficiaries of eligible enlisted men who are reported missing in action, interned in a neutral country, beleaguered, besieged or in the hands of the enemy.

A definite effort will be made to see that application for family allowances are filed by all enlisted men with known Class A dependents. In case the enlisted man refuses to file such application, the facts in the case will be reported by the unit commander, together with his recommendation to the Allowance and Allotment Branch, Adjutant General's Office, Building Y, 20th and B streets, N. E., Washington, D. C.

The Allowance and Allotment Branch will then provide to known Class A dependents every opportunity to file application for family allowances on their own behalf.

Decrease Found In Discriminatory Hiring Practices

Employment Service plays a major part in the selection and placement of trainees, we have also emphasized the problem to that agency. A decided improvement has been accomplished and we are confident it will continue. In one school, for example, where no negroes were enrolled two months ago, 22 are in training today. We are also presenting the schools and employers with lists of reliable group organizations through which competent workers or trainees may be recruited. This is developing into a resource of considerable importance.

Commissioner Miller said that the committee is still receiving many complaints from persons who are being barred from employment in war industries because of their national origin or because they are aliens. She added that the procedure recently announced by the President for dealing with this problem would be of considerable help but revealed that a conference with Attorney General Biddle had been requested with a view to ironing out discrepancies.

Hurlbut Drama Will Be Played

'The Storm' Is Week's Bill at Woodstock Playhouse

A legend of the Kaatsberg or Catskill Mountains, popularized by Washington Irving, is the basis of "The Storm," a new play written by Gladys Hurlbut, which is to have its world premiere at the Woodstock Playhouse on Thursday, Friday, Saturday and Sunday evenings of this week.

The Indians believed the Catskills to be the abode of spirits, who influenced the weather, spreading sunshine or clouds over the landscape, and sending good or bad hunting seasons. They were ruled by an old squaw spirit, said to be their mother and she dwelt on the highest peak of the Catskills and at her will dispensed showers to grace the spring and ripen the corn or, if displeased, brew up clouds and when they broke, woe betide the valleys.

It is in this atmosphere that Miss Hurlbut places the characters of her play, the locale a plateau on top of one of the Catskill mountains and at the foot of the mountains there is a famous art colony—Woodstock. The setting is that of the Day farmhouse, living room and terrace during the dog days. There is a mysterious Mr. Ling and an artist, Michael Torriani, whose lives become involved with the natives in dramatic episodes.

For the stellar role of Britina Day, Director Robert Elwyn has secured the services of Miss Mary Morris and other important roles will be filled by Edward Forbes as Mr. Ling, Johnny Heath as Michael Torriani, Joen Arliss as Glory Rose Day, the wild native girl, Ivan Triesault as Thayer Cabot, Philippa Bevans as Mary Cabot, Harry Young as Lemuel Day, and Mary Farrell as Daphne Ward.

The play has a surprise climax that is being carefully guarded pending opening night.

The author of "The Storm," Miss Hurlbut, will be remembered as author of "Higher and Higher," in which she wrote a part for the soul "Shirley" and made the Kingston seal Broadway famous.

Play by Kesselring
Director Robert Elwyn will present at the Woodstock Playhouse August 6, 7, 8 and 9 a new play by Joseph Kesselring, titled "Maggie McGilligan," and the featured players will be Kevin O'Shea, Joen Arliss and Johnny Heath. This is Mr. Kesselring's first play since "Arsenic and Old Lace." He is now a resident of Woodstock.

Patriotic Rally Is Held in Town of Esopus

In the top picture is a general view of the speakers' stand at the patriotic rally held last evening in Port Ewen. The speeches were given at exercises held in Ross Park. Left to right are the Rev. Michael Curley, C. S. R.; Senator Frederic H. Montecou, Major General Thomas W. Darrah, deputy director of metropolitan district, State Council of Defense; the Rev. Frank W. Coutant, and Miss Dorothea Groves. At the lower left is pictured Major General Darrah, (left) the main speaker of the evening, as he was introduced to the audience by Roscoe Elsworth, program chairman. In the lower right photo is a view of the air raid wardens and units in the civilian defense program of the Town of Esopus, as they paraded on Broadway, Port Ewen.

Port Ewen Defense Parade, Program Notable Success

Advancement of the sale of War Bonds and Stamps in this area. He praised the people of the town of Esopus for the way they already had responded to the appeal for purchase of bonds and stamps and the part they were doing in helping to raise Ulster county's quota of $670,000.

A feature of the program, which followed, was the singing of three numbers by the Tisdale trio, who volunteered their services and came up from New York city, to take part in the program.

Major General Thomas W. Darrah, deputy director of the metropolitan district, State Council of Defense, who had taken his place in the long line of march like a veteran, was the second speaker of the evening.

General Darrah Talks

General Darrah drew a parallel between the war effort in Great Britain and in this country, with a view to pointing out some things which should be done and some others which should be avoided. He said in part:

"The approach of both nations to this war was very similar, in fact, neither country had made preparations, and when war did come we were compelled to adopt wasteful, extravagant methods which could have been avoided had we had a correct understanding of what was going on in the world."

"You are familiar with the disaster that overtook the French and English armies in France, ending with the retreat of the British to Dunkerque and the subsequent surrender of France. The rescue of the British army from the trap into which it had fallen is a story of heroism that will live forever."

"The loss of men in this campaign was heavy and at Dunkerque the army lost about a thousand and cannon, practically all of their rifles and machine guns, large quantities of stores and transportation. As a result, although some 325,000 soldiers reached England, they were practically without weapons. In spite of this, there was not the slightest idea of surrendering or calling off the war.

"The British air force and navy accomplished the seemingly impossible—saved the country from invasion and gained the time necessary to re-equip the ground forces."

"A recent writer expresses his amazement over the lack of understanding in America as to the tremendous resources of Britain and the manner in which these resources have been amassed to bring up the country's military strength. He gives full credit to the dominions for the part they have played, but states that the bulk of this incredible job has been done by a little country, a third of the population of the United States, a fourth of the industrial capacity and of about a 33rd of the area, and adds that the all-out assault of the enemy has been met by the all-out response of England."

"Something for us to contemplate is what is known in England as a National Service Act, which requires that all persons of either sex, for the time being in Great Britain, are liable to national service, whether under the crown or in the armed forces, in civilian defense, in industry, or otherwise."

General Darrah then pointed to various branches of the war effort in Britain. "If we will," he said, "we can profit by England's experiences and perfect our civilian defenses so that if we are subjected to an aerial invasion, or become victims of widespread sabotage, we can limit the effect to a minimum. The choice is left to us—whether we provide in advance or whether we learn the hard way—through unnecessary casualties and property loss."

Following General Darrah's address, Miss Groves led the audience in singing "God Bless America," the Port Ewen Drum Corps accompanying and the program of the evening closed with prayer by the Rev. Frank Coutant, pastor of the Port Ewen Methodist Church.

Grease Catches Fire

Local firemen were called shortly before 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon to the residence of William Schweimler at 431 Albany avenue. Grease burning in a gas stove caused slight smoke damage on the first floor.

U. S. Oil Industry Uncovers Capacity to Make 200,000 Tons of Butadiene Yearly

Nazis Cut Red Railway Lines

The Bataisk sector, 15 miles below Rostov-on-Don.

"Heavy fighting is going on," a Soviet communiqué said, referring to this region. "The enemy has launched several attacks and advanced in separate sectors."

A bulletin from Nazi field headquarters declared German troops had stormed and captured the town of Proletarskaya, 100 miles below the lower Don, thereby cutting the last direct rail line to the Caucasus oil fields. Oil may still be shipped, however, up the Caspian Sea to the rail-river city of Astrakhan on the Volga.

The reported advance to Proletarskaya meant that the Germans had now swept 100 miles south-east beyond Rostov in their drive to the Caspian, and the speed of the thrust across the Steppes indicated that they were meeting little opposition. Proletarskaya is 175 miles southwest of Stalingrad.

Dispatches to Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper, emphasized the gravity of the situation, declaring:

"Only by a self-sacrificing struggle will we hold the enemy from the south."

While the Russians fought desperately to stem the Nazi steamroller, British warplanes attacked Germany for the seventh time in 10 nights, heavily pounding the big steel manufacturing center of Saarbrücken in the heart of the great Saar Valley coal fields. Nine R.A.F. planes were listed as missing.

German night raiders countered with widely separated attacks on the British Isles, dropping a few bombs on greater London for the first time since June 3, striking at Birmingham in the industrial Midlands and East Anglia. Seven of the raiders were shot down.

In the battle of Egypt, British headquarters reported that land

Washington, July 30 (AP)—Petroleum Coordinator Ickes said today that the oil industry has uncovered capacity for production of 200,000 tons annually of butadiene.

Ickes said this would make possible the output of 240,000 to 250,000 tons of synthetic rubber annually over and above presently projected rubber programs.

"It's brand-new; it's like finding an oil well," Ickes told his press conference.

This new rubber production could be "brought in" by the end of the year by conversion of existing gasoline refining plants, he said. The material used for butadiene would be gasoline.

Ickes declined to say whether he expected such a program would make more rubber available for civilian use.

The study of the capacity of the petroleum industry to produce butadiene for manufacture of rubber above the government's presently planned output of over 800,000 tons annually, was made by Wright W. Gary, director of refining in the Office of Petroleum Coordination, and Ickes said "the credit belongs to him and the oil industry for the achievement."

Several oil companies already are adjusting gasoline refineries to butadiene output, Ickes said, adding that several independent companies might need government financial assistance to make the adjustments.

Brazilian Ship Sunk

Rio de Janeiro, July 30 (AP)—The government announced today that the Brazilian ship Tamandare had been torpedoed and sunk.

operations were again limited to minor patrol skirmishes and artillery fire, while dust storms restricted aerial activity.

Axis warplanes raided Cairo this morning, killing one person and inflicting slight property damage. Air-raid alarms also sounded in the Suez Canal area and elsewhere in Egypt.

Keepsie Priest Gives Blood for the Fiftieth Time

When the Rev. Alexander M. Butkowsky, pastor of St. John the Baptist Roman Catholic Church, stepped upon the operating table at the minor operating room at St. Joseph Hospital yesterday, it marked the 50th time since December, 1938, that he had offered blood by transfusion to help a life.

Pint Is Minimum
Each time a transfusion is given, at least a pint is taken from the priest, indicating that during the past three and one half years Father Butkowsky has given more than six gallons of blood. Sometimes, Father Butkowsky confided, when the emergency called for more than a pint was taken.

"I remember one time in the Intensive Paralysis Hospital at Westoverstraw, I gave 850 c.c. to a patient there. There are 500 c.c. in a pint," he explained, "so you can see on that occasion gave considerably more than usual."

It seems that Father Butkowsky began his avocation as a volunteer blood donor in December, 1938, when an altar boy of the church was taken ill.

"I understood that a blood transfusion would be necessary so I volunteered. Samples taken of my blood showed that it was very rich and mixed well with other blood," he said.

The delights in telling that the boy recovered and today is a picture of health. That was the first time that Father Butkowsky was ever called upon, and 49 times since then he has responded to the call for aid.

Many times during the past three and one half years he has been too willing to contribute, for there were times when several transfusions were made at close intervals. "This is not supposed to be good for the donor," explained Father Butkowsky. "But as long as I have the blood, I am willing to give it."

"They don't use me as often as they did at first," he chuckled. "Perhaps they think I might run short."

"The reason I never seem to mind the loss is because I always eat well, rest well, and exercise a great deal," he said.

Father Butkowsky attributes his health to clean living. At least 10 miles of walking every day, plenty of rest, and an abundance of green vegetables, fresh fruits, and a large quantity of water and milk are the elements of his routine.

By tabulation, Father Butkowsky gave two transfusions in 1938, 19 in 1939, 15 in 1940, 12 in 1941, and yesterday gave his second for this year, bringing his total to 50.

He chuckles when he looks back over the period. "I never draw the line at race or creed, when I offer my blood," he said. "Why I have given my blood to Italians, Poles, Jews and Americans."

"I have given it directly into the veins and also indirectly," he said, "and the only reaction I ever have is that I get terribly hungry afterward. But a large steak always seems to cure that feeling."

1942 License Plates Will Serve Next Year
Albany, N. Y., July 30 (AP) — Their 1942 license plates will have to serve New York motorists through 1943.

Instead of new plates, the Motor Vehicle Commission will issue metal strips to be fastened above the present ones. The strips will read "NY-43."

This move will save about 900 tons of steel which otherwise would go into plates for the state's 2,500,000 registered motor vehicles, officials estimate.

While 40 per cent of the population of Argentina is of Italian descent, the people are against Fascism.

BOY SCOUT NEWS

The 55 Scouts at Camp Halfmoon for the last week of camp are having a fine time despite the poor weather on Monday. Steve Hyatt, camp director, reports that the scouts are working hard on advancement for the final court of honor which will be held Saturday night at the camp. Several of the council officers are planning on visiting camp that day and will take part in the court of honor. The scouts are to take a hike this week to Devil's Tombstone Mountain and then up Hunter Mountain to the fire tower and thence back to camp. This will be a trip of about 12 miles.

A second group is planning on going up Westkill Mountain and then down the valley to Westkill. There are several boys who are working on marksmanship merit badge and they have been busy on a target range to shoot the necessary scores.

Last week the boys held their annual election for the boy officers for the camp and this group took over the operation of the camp for one day. This year the group did an unusually fine job and ran the camp for the period with an interesting program. The officers elected were: Camp director, Jack Campbell; waterfront director, Robert O'Connell; ranger unitmaster, John Cordis; assistant, Homer Van Voorhis; pioneer unitmaster, Brian Owens; assistant, Jack Matthews; Indians unitmaster, Olley Warren; assistant, Stan Hasbrouck; steward, Harvey Kolts; assistant, Walter Ten Eyck; K.P. for the cook, Chick Relyea, Harry Koch and Frank Cahill.

This week is the final one of the camp and the boys have been fortunate in having good weather for the past month, only two days of rain and fair weather the rest of the time. The boys will leave camp on Sunday afternoon and the Girl Scouts of the Rip Van Winkle Council of Greene county are coming in that same afternoon to take over for a two-weeks' camp.

Tulacz Stops Elites, 6-3; Newkirk Hurls Third One-Hitter

Veteran Pitcher Also Drives Out Long Home Run

Acc Hurler Accounts for Five of Six Markers; Game on Saturday Night With Cincinnati

The Kingston Recreations put together only five base hits at the municipal stadium last night and still managed to score a hard-fought 6 to 3 verdict over the famous Baltimore Elite Giants before a crowd estimated around the 2,000 mark.

Yes, the big boy of the win was no one other than the old reliable, Whitey Tulacz, who pitched and batted himself to his eighth straight conquest of the year. Although being touched for 11 hits by the Elites, Tulacz picked his spots accurately and managed to squeeze through without too much damage. On the other hand, Tulacz himself, dealt Ace Adams, the Baltimore hurler, for the telling blow of the game with two runners on in the fifth and the Recs trailing by 3 to 1. Tulacz slammed a long drive along the left field foul line which went out of the playing field for a home run. It put Kingston ahead and Tulacz then saw to it that the lead was treated safely.

The next big attraction at the downtown ball park will be held Saturday, not Sunday, at 9 o'clock when the Kingston Recreations engage the Cincinnati Buckeyes, the Negro American League.

The management will continue to try out Saturday nights for the next few weeks in hopes of bringing better attractions for local patrons. There will be no game on Sunday while this experiment is being held. Bill Simmons is expected to pitch for Kingston.

Sparkling plays featured last night's battle for both sides. Pee Wee Butts, the young shortstop of the Elites, really stole the show with his great play. Ralph Coleman also continued to play a ball around first base. The circus catch of the game was turned in by Bill Wright in the fifth on Whitey Kowalek's looping fly. Wright grounded to the pitcher, took a tumble and still came up with the ball in his hit.

Both Tulacz and Adams got through the first three frames without any trouble. But in the fourth Scates walked and Roy Campinella dropped a single to left. Wright grounded to the pitcher, stepped on third forcing Scates. Girvan's return toss to Coleman to get Wright was wide, allowing Campinella to move on to third. Bill Hoskins then slashed a single into left driving in Campinella with the first run.

Baltimore made it 3 to 0 in the fifth after two were out. Butts singled through Girvan and Sam Hughes poked a long triple into left center, making it 2 to 0. Scates' liner into left drove in Hughes and now the Elites had a 3 to 0 margin. Scates was thrown out by Maines trying to make a double on his blow.

Tulacz Poles Homer
Kingston finally exploded in the last of the fifth when Ralph Coleman singled to left and went to second on Maines' walk. Adams filled the sacks when one of his pitches conked Girvan in the leg. Kowalek dropped a short fly in right field which looked like a sure hit but Wright dashed in and grabbed it for one of the best plays of the game. Conson scored. Tulacz then dashed out of the playing field in left, scoring Maines and Girvan ahead of him.

The Recs added another marker in the sixth on a walk to Downer. Lucchi singled to right and when the ball rolled through Wright, Downer scampered home. Lucchi, rounding third, also was waved in by Coach Bob Sickler but was an easy out, Wright to Hughes to Campinella.

An infield single by Adams, Butts double and a walk to Scates put Tulacz in hot water in the seventh but he forced Campinella to ground out to end the threat. In the seventh for Kingston, Girvan reached first on Scates' error and went to second on Kowalek's bunt. Tulacz sent Girvan home with a single to right. That was all the scoring in the ball game.

Press Box Jottings
While there were many sparkling plays in last night's thriller, there had to be one bopper pulled by the Recs. In the sixth inning when Lucchi singled and was waved in by Sickler for an easy out at the plate, Sickler left the coaches' box and walked over to the stands in back of third. Hoffman ordered him to get back on the job but he refused. Bill Thomas, who was sitting in the bull pen, rushed out and took over. Sickler, who has been in baseball long enough to know what it is all about, returned to the box in the seventh inning. It's one of those things, but that incident seems uncalled for.

The Baltimore infield pulled out two doublers. Ernie Downer hit into two of them. . . . Manny Gomez, who has been having his troubles, nearly came up with two errors last night. His one error came in the ninth when Butts doubled to right. Gomez picked up the ball and tossed it into left field trying to get Butts. . . . Ralph Coleman made a great backhand stab of Hoskins' drive in the eighth. . . . Roy Campinella looked good with two hits and fine play behind the plate. . . . Butts really stole the show, however, with his sensational play at short. He rapped out four of the 11 hits off Tulacz, two going for doubles.

Dodgerettes Rout Baltz by 29 to 1

Winners Will Battle With Fullers Tonight

At Barmann Park last night Mob Lynch's Pleasure Yacht Dodgerettes scored a 29 to 1 victory over the Baltz musers. The losers scored their lone marker in the last half of the seventh.

The Dodgerettes scored eight runs in the first and after that it was easy coasting. Blanche Glass poked three homers for the winners. Lois Crosswell and Arlene Van Buren pitched for the Dodgerettes with Louise Leonard doing the catching.

Tonight the Dodgerettes engage the Fuller softball club in what promises to be a real battle.

Keep our boys tipped by putting the U. S. O. drive over the top.

Continues Pace

"PEE WEE" REESE

Topic of constant conversation among the Brooklyn Dodgers these days is the dazzling play of Harold "Pee Wee" Reese at shortstop. "One of the greatest plays I have ever seen on a ball field," was the comment of Larry French after Reese had made a bullet-like peg from deep short to nail Maurice Van Robays for the final out in the ninth inning of the game on July 12 at Pittsburgh. The tying run was on third at the time—in fact the runner was almost home when Reese flagged the Belgian's torrid smash directed at the hole between Reese and Vaughan and fired to Camilli for the out. Curt Davis also praises Reese, going on to say that the Little Colonel is better than any man he has ever seen at making plays behind second. And you can depend on pitchers to know what it means to have brilliant support by a shortstop. Reese is wowing 'em with his amazing speed and agility.

Got in the Scrap!

Chicago Is Only Team to Take Pair From Champs; Van Mungo Loses for Giants

(By The Associated Press)
The Chicago White Sox have been going nowhere in the American League ever since the season started, but they have attained one distinction denied every other club in the circuit. They are the only team to sweep a doubleheader from the world champion New York Yankees and they have accomplished the feat not once, but twice.

When the Sox first turned the trick in New York on June 28, the Yankees were in a slump and the Sox didn't get much credit. It was like picking on a man while he was down.

But they caught the champions last night at the crest of a winning streak that included four straight victories and 15 of their last 16 games. They proceeded to whip the Yankees at the kind of ball, for which New York is noted—slogging.

The second game, played under the lights, saw the Sox take an early 5-2 lead, the Yankees tie the score in the sixth, and then Chicago came back with two runs in its half of the same frame to win 7-5.

This merely dented the Yanks' big first place margin to 12 games, because the Boston Red Sox were nosed out 7-6 in 11 innings at Cleveland, when Roy Weatherly singled to drive home the winning run. Cronin contributed an error to a four-run Tribal rally in the third inning, but tied the score with a two-run homer in the sixth. Eight pitchers and five catchers were used during the struggle.

The other American League contests were equally wild. At St. Louis the Washington Senators squeezed past the Browns again 11-10 with four runs in the ninth inning. There was scoring in every frame and ten pitchers were used, six by St. Louis. George McQuinn, Vernon Stephens and Walt Judnich all hit home runs for the Browns, Judnich with two on in the seventh, and Bruce Campbell connected for the Senators, who totalled 20 hits to St. Louis' 13.

The Detroit Tigers walloped the Philadelphia Athletics 12-7 in an affair that would have been considerably lopsided except for five Detroit errors. Rudy York hit his 15th home run with one on in the sixth and his teammates rolled up eight more runs in the seventh. In the National League the Brooklyn Dodgers enlarged their lead to eight games by beating the St. Louis Cardinals 4-3 in a twilight tussle that was halted in the last of the seventh by wartime dimout regulations in the New York area.

Wyatt Wins 12th
Whitlow Wyatt faced Mort Cooper in what should have been a pitching battle but wasn't. The Cards led off with two hits in three of their last four turns at bat and on the other loaded the bases with three walks. But Wyatt was tight in the pinches and subdued all the Redbirds except Enos (Country) Slaughter, who drove in all the St. Louis runs with a homer in the first and a double in the seventh. It was Wyatt's 12th victory against the defeats.

The two doubleheaders which completed the senior circuit card were halted. The Chicago Cubs welcomed Van Lingle Mungo back into the majors a bit rudely, beating the New York Giants 4-2 even though held to seven hits in the first game.

The Giants took the second game, however, 3-1, with Dick Bartell and Babe Young hitting homers and Bill Lohman driving in a run with a single in addition to pitching nine-hit ball.

The Pittsburgh Pirates took their first game at Boston 3-0 on five-hit hurling by Truett (Rip) Sewell after being shut out for seven stanzas by Al Javery. Then the Braves retaliated with a 6-5 decision in the nightcap in behalf of Big Jim Tobin.

Airplane Engine Made Ready for Its Part in War

Wide World Military Editor Paterson, N. J., July 30—This is an airplane engine . . .

In a huge, high-ceilinged shed where acid fumes bite your nostrils, half-naked giants peer at a row of temperature gauges. One reaches the proper reading. They don goggles, heavy gloves, strap thick padding across their shins. Then they slide a long bar through the handle of a heavy cauldron filled to the brim with bubbling, ugly molten metal.

Almost casually they pick it up and walk it to a row of molds. There, as two men hold the bar, the third tips the spout toward each of the molds in turn. Out pours silvery, wicked-looking stuff. It is magnesium, the metal in incendiary bombs. Bits that drip to the floor sputter and flare there just like a fire-bomb fragment. Yet these foundry men handle it almost as though they were pouring tea. . . .

Rows upon rows of machines are set up in what once was a silk mill. With a precision no human hand could achieve, they turn out gears, crankshafts, counterweights, cylinders—parts that must be accurate to minute fractions of an inch.

Nearby a workman is glancing through a newspaper, perhaps reading about the Dodgers. That's time-wasting in a war production plant, you think. But no. The machine—perhaps the four or five machines—this man is tending are going about their business. They're working at top speed. So long as there's no trouble, he can take time out to read. . . .

Here is another plant. Inside, on the main floor, are wire-partitioned cages. At the entrance to each is a sign: "Restricted—Do Not Enter." This is where they assemble the engines; not all together, but in portions.

In one cage they are doing minor assemblies, perhaps of cylinders. In the next they are putting together another part of the engine.

As each is completed, it is slid out through an opening to the assembly line that runs by the entire row of cages. There the various partial assemblies are put together, until at the end of the line off come the gleaming Wright Cyclones and Whirlwinds that go into bombers and into huge planes like the Martin Mars and Boeing's new Sea Ranger. . . .

Complete, Not Finished

But an engine complete is not an engine finished and ready for its job. Out in back of the plant there is a constant, slightly-muffled roar. There are the row upon row of test cells, giant chambers with sound-proofed walls, with thick doors hinged and chained and bearing red-lettered signs saying "Danger—Engine Being Tested."

You peer in through little peep-holes next to the door. In the semi-darkness you might think there was some sort of prehistoric monster caged in there, a monster whose roars shake the foundation and which blows jets of blue vapor through its nostrils. . . .

This is the home plant of the Wright Aeronautical Company, split up into five factories which are scattered throughout Paterson—scattered both because of the fact that in its expansion Wright took over whatever floor space was available in vacated silk mills, and because it seemed wise to spread out in case of enemy air attack. Against the danger of such attack, the plants have been camouflaged.

From an afternoon's visit to this establishment, one brings back a picture of unhurried haste, of men and machines working carefully and well. Each engine, before it goes out to the fighting front, gets from four to six hours in the test cell. Then it is taken down completely again and, though each individual part had been inspected beforehand, now they are inspected again.

The engine then is reassembled, sent into the test cell once more for a final five-hour run. Gauges and indicators show how the oil feed is working, how much gasoline it consumes, what the engine will do under all sorts of weather conditions that can be simulated in the cell.

Then, and not until then, is it given a final polishing, set into a huge packing box by an overhead trolley, and shipped out to the wars.

India Will Meet Developments on Gandhi's Stand

London, July 30 (AP)—L. S. Amery, secretary for India, told the House of Commons today that the Government in India would do everything in its power to meet any developments arising from Mohandas K. Gandhi's proposed civil disobedience movement.

"The government, while reiterating their resolve to give the fullest opportunity to India for attainment of complete self-government," he said, "can not but solemnly warn all those who stand behind the policy adumbrated by the working committee of the Congress that the government of India will not flinch from its duty to take every possible step to meet the situation."

The all India Congress is expected to approve on August 7 Gandhi's call for a civil disobedience campaign to obtain self-rule now instead of waiting until after the war as Britain has proposed.

Replying to questions on the present intentions of the government toward India, Amery said "the government stands firmly by the broad intentions" of its offer of post-war independence made through Sir Stafford Cripps.

"No greater disservice to the cause for which the United Nations are fighting can be imagined," he said of the Gandhi proposal for immediate removal of British civil authority in India.

In response to suggestions that he reopen negotiations with Indian leaders, Amery said Cripps already had held "not inconsiderable discussions."

Old-Fashioned Bayonets Will Work in Aleutians

New York, July 30 (AP)—Modern warfare with its tanks and bombing planes won't work in the Aleutians but the old-fashioned bayonet will, says Harold McCracken, archaeologist and explorer who spent years in the strategic islands.

"The only way to oust the Jap invaders," he declared yesterday, "is to land a sufficient force to chase them with bayonets into the Bering Sea."

"The Japanese know every inch of the country," he explained. "In case of bombing they can disappear into their barabaras like gophers into holes. Barabaras are native huts, part underground and covered with vegetation. They are natural air raid shelters."

on Smith avenue. Private Merrill reports that he would be glad to hear from friends in Kingston.

At Camp Upton

PVT. ALBERT RINALDO

Private Albert Rinaldo, son of Mrs. Rita Rinaldo, of Glasco, and husband of the former Miss Marguerite Decker, reported at Camp Upton, L. I., July 29, where he was inducted into the United States Army. Private Rinaldo says, "I am more than glad to go my share for America. It is a country worth fighting for."
